OUR STORY

Once upon a time almost 20 years ago, there was a guy from Jersey who moved to Myrtle Beach with his family to start a business. One day he called a local sign company to get a new sign for his business. The price was so outrageously high that he told that sign guy that if he ever left his current business, he would open a sign shop of his own to offer fair pricing to the people. So, in 2008, our story begins...

It all started in a two-car garage with a desk and a mission statement to always put customers before transactions. What was needed first was a name. A brand that would capture the creativity we possess with an eye-catching logo for both adults and children alike. We knew we couldn't just be another sign company. We had to stand out. After hours of brainstorming and several wads of paper on the floor, the frustration of not getting it just right was rising. After tossing the last piece of paper in the trash can out of anger...The Mad Sigtist was born.

Now armed with a brand, a name and surrounded by his most trusted friends, we got to work acquiring all the equipment that would be needed and set out to get our first customers. Fast forward to today, The Mad Sigtist has had five shops, outgrowing each one every few years and new equipment has been added as we continue to grow in creativity. We have gained new friends to help us along the way and have earned a reputation for exceptional customer service and expedited turn-around times.

The Mad Sigtist chooses to stay small to help the "mom and pop" businesses out there like ourselves. We love what we do and have a lot of fun creating with our customers in our shop every day. We are always growing and learning about new products. We tackle each project as a new challenge and will not rest until it is successfully executed. Even though there are just a few of us, YOU are always our priority.

Box Truck and Trailer Wraps

Box truck wraps and graphics are the best way to capitalize on your existing assets. There is no better way to market or advertise your company than wrapping your truck. Many of our clients own and operate businesses which utilize box trucks for delivering products and servicing their customers. When you have commercial vehicle with no branding on it, you are missing the biggest branding opportunity in your market. Vinyl wrap graphics have an extremely high retention rate and are more targeted than many business owners are aware.

Cabinet Box Signs

Cabinet Box Signs are available as flat acrylic or pan style. Translucent Vinyl or Embossed lettering are used if the box lights up. Cabinet Box Signs are best used if you have an intricate design, are seeking durability and longevity, and you have the space. They are internally illuminated with LED lights. Cabinet Signs can be post or wall mounted. Engineered Drawing and Permit are required.

Channel Letters

Channel Letters are a popular and classy way to brand a new retail storefront, office building or restaurant. Each letter has an individual structure and separate illumination, resulting in a professional and highly visible sign.

Choose from these options:

FRONT AND BACK LIT CHANNEL LETTERS

If you are looking for dramatic illumination for your sign, front and back lit channel letters may be the perfect option. Rather than being lit from just the front or the back, the effect is slightly different and more dramatic than illuminating from either side.

REVERSE LIT CHANNEL LETTERS

Often called "Halo" or "Backlit" letters, reverse lit channel letter signs are mounted away from the wall, causing the light to form a halo effect behind the sign. The distance from the sign to the wall that it is mounted on enables the halo of illumination around each individual character, helping the reverse lit channel letters stand out. Instead of acrylic, reverse channel letters have a metal face. They are also fitted with aluminum letters. Reverse lit channel letters typically have clear lexan or polycarbonate backs.

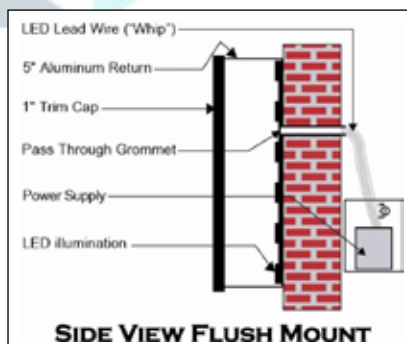

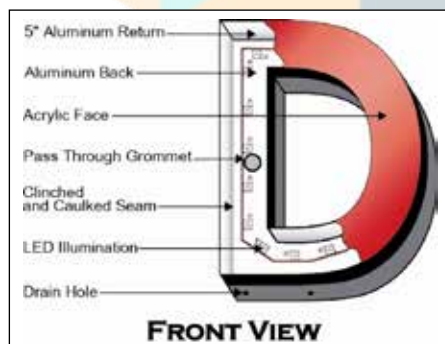

FRONT LIT CHANNEL LETTERS

Front lit channel letters use lights to illuminate the face of the letters. This is done with a translucent acrylic face and lights that shine from within the letter itself. Front lit channel letters are the most common type of channel letter. They draw attention during the day or night.

LED Lighting

Channel letters in the past have typically been lit with neon lighting, but the last few years have increased in LED lighting as an illumination source.

Not only are LED Channel Signs more energy efficient, lower maintenance and have a lower voltage than neon-lit signs, their lightweight design nearly eliminates breakage.

Substrates

We have a wide variety of substrates available. We'll help you choose which one is best for you for your specific application.

Corrugated - Coroplast is a fluted polypropylene substrate, great for those looking for an economical material for digital and screen print applications.

Acrylic - Designed to be more durable and much lighter than glass, Acrylic offers a high-quality solution where safety and ease of handling are factors. Acrylic has a low molecular weight and is great for general signage, illuminated signage, thermoforming, framing, and making displays.

Wood - Wood is versatile and can be designed to match a variety of situations, from rustic or vintage, to elegant, modern, charming and bold. They're truly personalized. Wood offers a unique alternative to the traditional forms of signage and advertising. Laser cut or engraved wood can achieve a level of detail that is unmatched. The width of the laser beam is less than a human hair and provides a high degree of precision.

Aluminum -

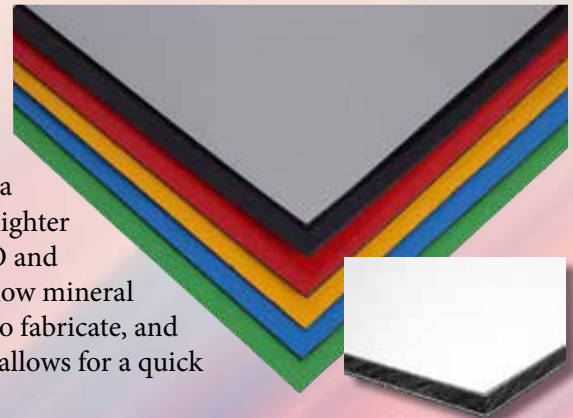

Aluminum has remained a staple in the sign industry. It can take on years of wear from the elements and still show bright, beautiful coloring. Aluminum is a lightweight material that is heated and extruded — or pushed through a shaped die — into flat, thin sheets. These sheets are cut and used for a multitude of purposes, including outdoor signage. The material comes in several colors, but is also receptive to paint, printed inks and finishes.

Max Metal -

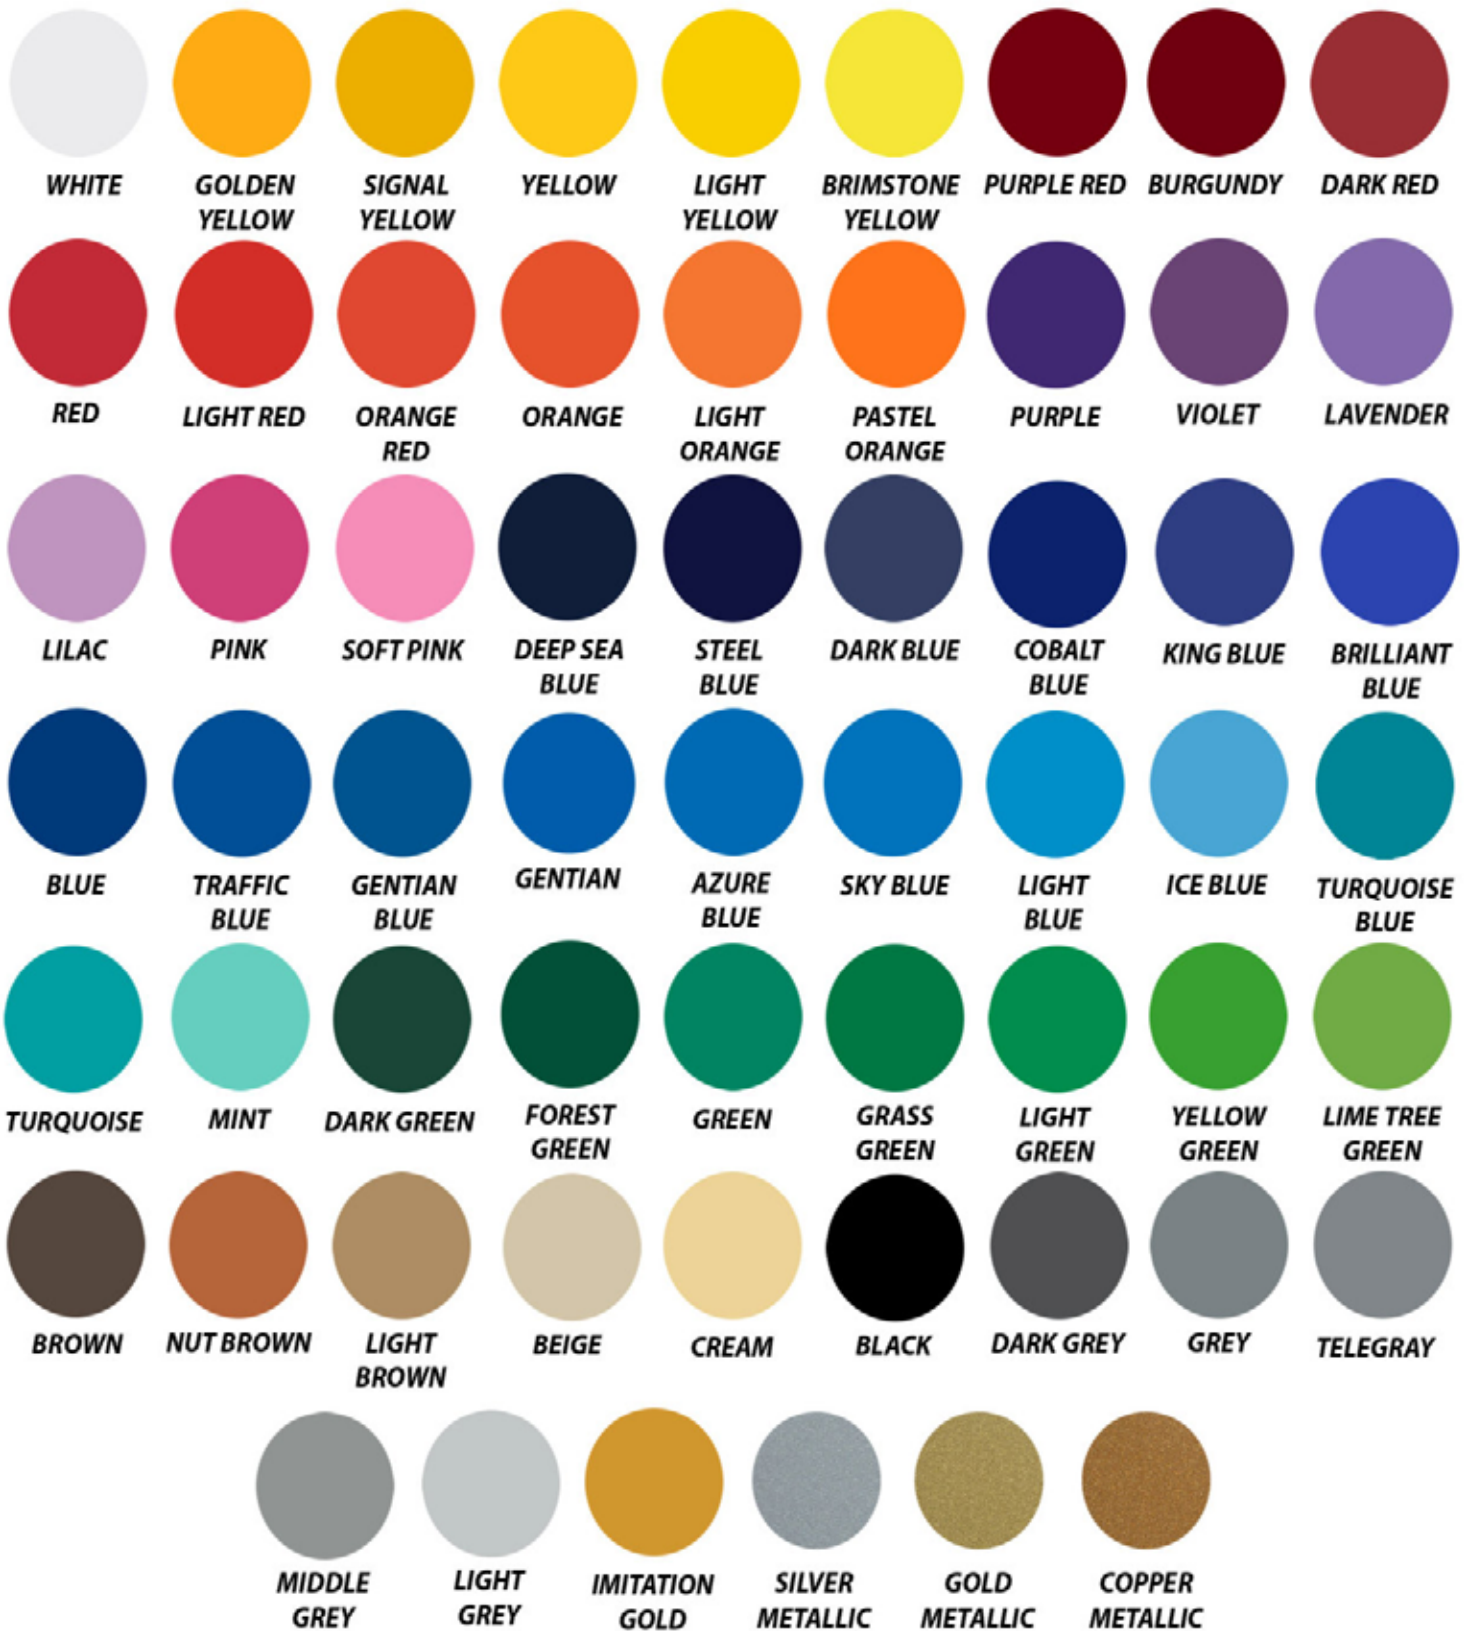

Max Metal is the standard in ACM, or aluminum composite material. Comprised of two, pre-painted .15mm aluminum panels bonded to a solid polyethylene core, it is lighter and more durable than MDO and solid aluminum panels. The low mineral core makes Max Metal easy to fabricate, and its low thermal conductivity allows for a quick cool down.

UltraBoard - UltraBoard Classic foam core board is a popular and versatile foam board product that can be used for a variety of applications. Easily cut with die cut, drag knife, router and more, UltraBoard can be fabricated to meet the needs of almost any job. With up to 10-year durability, UltraBoard is an ideal solution for interior permanent displays and signs and is offered in several thickness and color options.
