Chaplains March Message

It is another month with a focus on history and though it's Women's history month, I would like to focus on a truth of history. We can learn a lot from history both good and bad, the irony is that we can learn good from the bad and bad from the good. Often times people of history are remembered for the greater good or bad they do while the other can be overshadowed. If you even mention the other side of the individual then you might be labeled depending on how that person is remembered. One of the greatest examples is a man remembered for some of the worst crimes of history, Adolf Hitler. A man remembered for the holocaust of the Jewish people. Some of the things this man did is not even mentioned or even known for how vial they were. However as I mentioned, he do some good that because of his worst behavior he isn't given credit for. My grand mother lived in Romania during that time and is quick to say that it was Hitler who saved Germany from a potential economic collapse and had he stopped at that and how he did it, he would have been remembered in a different light. We also have great people that are known for great things but also did bad things, not quite as bad as Hitler but bad nevertheless. Martin Luther King, Jr. is known for the civil rights movement that changed the course of history and yet he was also documented as have commit atrocities toward women and was present at others. Further some bad things have been done in his name that he didn't publicly advocate. We have had great Presidents that have had skeletons in their closets. We could go on about people in history, or the present, that are only truly known for one side or the other yet had potential in the opposite direction. Even scripture gave us examples of Godly men committing acts of evil such as King David that sent a man into battle for him to be killed so he could be free to have his wife. Or Saul that was a leader leader that persecuted Christian's believing he was doing right till God changed his heart and he became Paul, one of the greatest prophets of God and the Christian faith.

The point is that there is nothing that cannot be forgiven by God. He not only forgives but as an example to all, he took the place of a serial murderer on the cross. We don't know if that murder came to a belief in Christ but he was given a second chance to do so. You to have that opportunity to know the Grace of the one true God and loving Father in Heaven.
