On June 26, the Catholic Church commemorates the life of Saint Josemaría Escrivá, priest and founder of The Prelature of the Holy Cross and Opus Dei. He was born in Barbastro, Spain on January 9, 1902 into a pious family. When he was young, he one day saw bare footprints left in the snow by a monk. The small sign left a great impression of holiness on the young man that would begin to guide his life and foster a vocation to the priesthood.

He developed a prayer life intensely centered on the Eucharist during his priestly studies in Logroño, and also cultivated deep devotion to Mary. "The Blessed Virgin has always helped me to discover her Son's desires," he said, and would often pray for her to ask God to reveal his will to him.

On March 28, 1925, Josemaría was ordained to the priesthood. During his early ministry, he worked among a variety of people, including children, students, artists, and workers, while also teaching law to help support his mother and sister. Three years later, while on retreat, Josemaría saw the mission God intended for him, that of opening up a new spirituality and vocational path for the laity in the form of Opus Dei ("the work of God"). This prelature would become the central focus of his life, serving many of the unmet spiritual needs of lay people at the time. The young movement began to grow quickly, attracting in particular university students. In the late 1930's, the Spanish Civil War brought great hardships for the Church while Josemaría continued his work. His reputation for holiness, and thus his movement, began to grow in this time.

In 1946, Josemaría moved to Rome to obtain papal recognition of his movement from Pope Pius XII, which was granted the following year. Even as successive popes sent their blessings and affection, the work involved in expanding Opus Dei took a toll on Josemaría. Nonetheless, he is said to have never stopped smiling. Josemaría welcomed Pope John XXIII's calling of the Second Vatican Council. His work in expanding the way to holiness for lay persons was seen by the Council Fathers seen as a precursor to Vatican II's renewed focus on the life of the laity. He worked swiftly to implement the Council's decisions into the life and worship of Opus Dei.

In the latter years of his life, Josemaría traveled throughout the world to catechize his organization, often drawing crowds of thousands.

On June 26, 1975, Josemaría died in his workroom of a heart attack. The last thing he ever looked upon was an hanging icon of Our Lady. At his death, Opus Dei was present on all inhabited continents, numbering over 60,000 people from more than 80 nationalities.

Reflection by Deacon Chris Daniello...

Are We Always Looking Toward Jesus

Jesus stated, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me." — John 14:6

It is noteworthy that sunflowers exhibit phototropic behavior, following the sun from east in the morning to west in the afternoon. This constant orientation towards the sun signifies their dependence on the radiant source for sustenance.

Similarly, our lives should emulate this behavior, consistently focused on Jesus Christ, the true SON, to guide us in our daily practice of our Catholic faith. It is essential to always remain attentive to Jesus. When we rely on our own understanding, we risk falling into sin and losing our spiritual vitality, much like how sunflowers wilt when deprived of sunlight.

The sun remains stationary, while it is the earth that rotates. In our lives, regardless of the changes around us, we must steadfastly focus on Christ, the unchanging constant. Keeping our attention on Jesus, the source of our life, is imperative.

If you find yourself losing sight of Jesus, consider these practices:

Increase your prayer life: Many overlook the importance of prayer. St.

Ephrem emphasized that prayer cultivates virtues in our hearts—it protects us from anger, pride, and envy. Praying helps us align ourselves with Jesus.

Receive Communion frequently: Attending Mass and receiving Communion are profound acts of missionary work and evangelization.

St. John Paul II noted that the Eucharist contains within itself the "world's principle and eternal source of salvation." Therefore, Catholics should partake in its benefits as often as possible.

Attend confession regularly: Do not hesitate or fear confessing. It offers spiritual cleansing, akin to the leper being made clean in the gospel.

Commit to reading the Bible: Pope Benedict XVI encouraged Christians to familiarize themselves with the Scriptures. Incorporate the Bible into your daily prayers.

Cultivate devotion to the Virgin Mary: Mary serves as an exemplary model for all Catholics to develop a more Christ-centered life.

Deacon Chris

Prayer To Overcome Worry

Dear Lord,

Thanks for being my provider and my comforter. I come to you in prayer today to ask for peace. Lord, I worry too much about everything but I know that worrying accomplishes nothing.

So I pray that you grant me the strength and courage to be able to let go of this fear and worry that has taken over my mind and my heart. Help me to let go and trust in you. Remind me that you are always in control. I pray you grant me the patience I need to withstand this storm. Let me feel your comfort and warm embrace while you calm my anxious mind. Thank you for your lovingkindness,

Amen
