Imagine if you're forced into a relationship, no ifs, no buts.
Elections can feel a lot like that, especially when you don't vote.

It is crucial for the youth to have agency, especially when choosing their partner.
Being governed by a party you didn't choose is like being in a relationship you didn't ask for.

A political party wins, and suddenly you're stuck with their policies and promises.

Through this analogy, we want the youth to realise lightheartedly that this is also a relationship that affects them intimately - and hence they should be choosing, wisely.
