Play Director

Sharron Lewis is the Executive Director and Co-Founder of Empower You Edutainment, a nonprofit dedicated to uplifting youth through culturally rooted arts, advocacy, and education. A retired performing arts educator and visionary leader, Sharron has spent decades using theater, dance, and storytelling to empower underserved communities and amplify voices often left unheard. She is proud to be the director of the Rhapsody Called Journey Musical Her work blends creativity with purpose—producing original plays that address domestic violence, mental health, systemic racism, and Black legacy. Through plays like Nelly's Story, Nowhere to Run, and Freedom, she creates transformative spaces for healing, growth, and intergenerational connection. She is the NAACP Riverside County Branch First Vice President and the Riverside County NAACP Youth Council Advisor.

Playwright,
as Monica Beaumont

Nia Sharron Campbell is a gifted performer and playwright whose work spans improv, comedy, and drama. She has appeared in a variety of stage productions, including Charlotte's Web with Riverside Community Players and as Tituba in The Crucible at both King High School and Riverside City College. In addition to her acting, Nia is an accomplished playwright. Her original works—The Other Side, The Elephant in the Room, and her latest play, A Rhapsody Called Journey—demonstrate her ability to tell powerful, thought-provoking stories that blend artistry with social commentary. Her contributions to theater have been recognized by the Riverside Arts Council at the Mayor's Ball, where she received distinction for her achievements in playwriting. With her dynamic stage presence and commitment to using the arts as a platform for healing and dialogue, Nia continues to inspire audiences and uplift her community through performance and storytelling.
