

Dr. Steven Merrill, CEO/Owner of Veritas Leadership Research & Consulting, Inc., Relationship Factors - Foundations to Powerful Relationships

BIO:

Dr. Steve Merrill holds degrees in organizational leadership, business, and mathematics. He also has held leadership positions as a university administrator, in logistics and sales, and as a veteran naval officer. As a leadership expert, he has worked with small, local companies up to large, international multi-million dollar organizations.

Throughout his career, Steve has been fascinated with leadership and in understanding what traits and practices support the making of an effective leader. His own real-world experience and subsequent doctoral research in this area have guided him in identifying four powerful Relationship Factors. By strengthening interpersonal relationships in the business world, these factors increase employee engagement, job satisfaction, and personal and organizational well-being.

Few things bring him greater professional satisfaction than helping men and women become outstanding leaders in their organizations. These leaders lift not just their teams and organization, they also lift their own relationships and the world around them.

Steve and his wife Kris are Utah natives, and have lived in Riverton for the past 19 years and are almost empty-nesters, with only one of their three sons still living at home. They are anxiously awaiting the birth of their first grandchildren, twins due in May.
