

Jeff Bousson, Climate Program Manager, Utah Clean Energy

Jeff Bousson is the Climate Program Manager for the local nonprofit, Utah Clean Energy. Jeff manages community engagement programs at Utah Clean Energy and works with local governments, businesses, academic institutions, and community leaders to accelerate clean energy and climate change solutions in Utah. Jeff oversees the Utah Climate Action Network, serves a Board Member and Event Planner for the Utah Sustainable Business Coalition, works with local governments and businesses to advance clean energy and building decarbonization initiatives, and organizes the annual Utah Climate Week.

Before joining the team at Utah Clean Energy, Jeff served as the National Development Director for the environmental nonprofit, American Conservation Experience in Flagstaff, Arizona. In 2015, Jeff graduated from the Climate Science and Solutions Master's program at Northern Arizona University as well as worked in southern Argentina to produce a scientific manuscript highlighting the impacts of climate change and land-use practices across Patagonia."