

Morgan Everett, Director of Utah Government and Real Estate Development

Morgan Everett is the Director of Utah Government Relations and Real Estate Development for the nonprofit Sundance Institute, producer of the annual Sundance Film Festival and other support programs for independent artists. In this role, he has negotiated long-term leases in various US markets, designed and incorporated new technology and methodology to more accurately capture the economic impact of the annual Sundance Film Festival, and implemented strategic changes in the way the Sundance Institute story is presented to public partners.

Morgan holds a Master of Public Administration and BA in history from the University of Utah. He lives with his wife, two daughters, and Borderdoodle in Salt Lake City, Utah.
