Felicia Berrier Reimagines a Song She First Released in 2018 With “Farther (Relmaged)”

Eight years after quietly releasing the original GarageBand recording, the independent singer-songwriter revisits the song with new lyrics, expanded production, and a story of looking back to move forward.

[Wilmington, DE] — October 23, 2026 — Independent singer-songwriter and music educator Felicia Berrier revisits a piece of her musical past with the release of “Farther (Relmaged),” available Friday, October 23, 2026.

Originally written and recorded in 2018, “Farther” was a song Berrier released quietly as a surprise. Produced entirely in GarageBand, the original recording represented an early chapter in her development as a songwriter and producer. In 2021, Berrier removed the song from streaming platforms, feeling that the recording no longer represented the artist she had become.

Now, eight years after the original release, Berrier has returned to the song with rewritten lyrics, new production, and a completely new arrangement that reflects how far she has come both personally and musically.

“Farther (Relmaged)” explores the experience of realizing that a relationship has gone further than you ever intended it to. The song moves from the comfort and closeness of a relationship into the painful realization that holding onto it is no longer healthy. Rather than detailing the circumstances behind the relationship, Berrier uses imagery of distance, travel, and time to tell a more universal story about recognizing when it is time to let go.

The release also serves as a reflection on Berrier's own journey. The original “Farther” was written and produced when she was a teenager; “Farther (Relmaged)” is the result of returning to that work with nearly a decade of growth behind her.

That theme carries through the song's visual identity and promotional campaign. Inspired by scrapbooks, home videos, polaroids, and memories collected over time, Berrier's campaign traces her life from 2018 through 2026. The accompanying visualizer combines new footage with nostalgic imagery, including family home-video footage and footage captured on a Sony Handycam, creating a visual representation of the years between the song's original release and its reimagining.

The artwork continues the theme with Berrier shown from behind watching fireworks, a black bow in her hair becoming a recurring symbol throughout the project.

“Farther (Relmaged)” follows Berrier's recent single “Deal With It,” continuing a year of new music and creative growth for the independent artist.
