

Join us for a Tea Party and help save a piece of history

The old Redabaugh family farm barn is in danger of being demolished by the developer of the former Redabaugh farm on CR 50 in Johnstown. He's given permission for it to be removed from the development, but time is of the essence.

Michelle Babb, owner of the Dreams & Dragonflies Event center across the road from the barn will hold this Tea Party to raise awareness of the barn and her project to move it across the road to her property in order to save it from pending demolition.

Once moved, Babb will start the process of preserving this historic building by first painting it and replacing the roof, and afterward will decide its future use. This old barn and others like it hold the stories of local history of Johnstown's deep agricultural roots. Join us for a special afternoon to help save this important part of Johnstown's history.

Guest speaker Parish House Museum Director Billie DeLancey will deliver a presentation on The History of Table Manners in America.
