

PARISH NEWS

We embody our faith.

It's a common theme in the language we use to talk about how God is active in our world. We confess the resurrection of the body; it's central to our understanding of why Easter is so important. We understand Jesus as the incarnate Word of God, born in human flesh. The first chapter of the Bible claims that every human being, is made in the image of God. Our faith isn't just an idea that exists solely in the realm of abstract thought. It's how we live and breathe. Our faith is revealed in our words and actions - by how we use our bodies and how we treat the bodies of others.

We don't embody our faith just as individuals, either, but as a community. In the waters of baptism, God knits us together as one in the mystical body of Christ in the world. That's what the Church is called to be, recognizing that in each of us is the power to do the work of God, but that also means that the way we serve God is by serving others. The way we love God is by loving each other.

If we truly believe that each person bears the image of God, that every human being is a sacred revelation of the divine, then we as the Church are called to work against anything that desecrates or denigrates that divine image. We are called to denounce the sins of racism and white supremacy. We are called to stand in solidarity with each other, working to defend and empower those who are rendered vulnerable and made into victims by people who refuse to acknowledge the image of God they bear. When the world refuses to see the inherent dignity of every human life, we are called to change the world.

Empowered by the Holy Spirit we work along side each other to live the faith we embody. That's what it means to be the Church.

In Peace,
Pastor Micah
