

IN MAGAZINE: New York-based writer Robert W. Cabell creates an over-the-top gay fantasy world in The Hair-Raising Adventures of Jayms Blonde, his illustrated novel that takes us from Hawaii to Hong Kong for Blonde's increasingly outlandish battles with the forces of ZENRON (Zealous Environmental Nazis Ruthlessly Obliterating Nature). Like James Bond and M, Blonde gets his secret assignments from the RuPaulesque Mama. Also like Bond, Cabell employs deliciously shameless names for his characters, like Hung Lo and Harri Kummalot. This one feels like the first in a delightfully silly series.
