75th Birthday Celebration

harvestchurch

In 1949 a small group of Christians started to meet together to encourage each other in their faith. In due course they decided to form into a church, as a community of believers gathered to Jesus.

Alton Evangelical, and then Alton Evangelical Free Church (AEFC), gradually grew. Initially meeting in a home in Lenten Street; we moved to premises on Amery Hill, then to the Forrester's Hall on Church Street. In 2005, we renamed to Harvest Church and moved to Alton Maltings, a centre for the church and wider community.

In this time the church has pioneered new social initiatives including a Toy Library, toddler groups (Stepping Stones), groups for adults needing support (OneWay, Fresh Start and Lighthouse) and, more recently, CAP services including Debt Help, Job Club and Money Coaching.

We have also helped to support other community initiatives such as Food Bank and ADCRF (see page 14).

Throughout the last 75 years we have not lost our purpose - to be a welcoming, inclusive community helping people to know Jesus and love Him.

We meet at Alton Maltings on Sundays 10:30am and throughout the week in local small groups.

You are very welcome to join us.

WHAT'S NEW?

At the start of the year we continued with our "Going Green" refurbishments. These included replacing more of our lights with energy saving LED alternatives and creating a cycle rack in our car park.

We replaced our hot water boiler enabling us to use flasks in our rooms instead of energy intensive urns. We have opened our new "Refresh" area, complete with cold water dispenser and coffee machine. We look forward to sharing more improvements in our next issue.

Alton and District Community Relief Foundation

The Alton & District Community Resilience Fund was established during the Covid pandemic to support people in the Alton area experiencing financial hardship.

Re-branded in 2023, the Alton & District Community Relief Foundation (ADCRF) has been taken forward by partnership representation from Harvest Church, Alton Lions Club (CIO), Parish of the Resurrection and Citizens Advice. It has continued to support local individuals and families and is now a registered charity.

The five Trustees receive applications on a referral basis, and award one-time grants of up to £600. With funds going directly to the provider of the goods or service required.

The Trustees also signpost applicants to services and resources, such as Citizens Advice Bureau, Alton Food Bank, Community Cupboard, Resurrection Furniture, Christians Against Poverty (CAP), and youth and family support charities and organisations.

“Where possible, we collaborate with local charities, service organisations and funding sources to avoid duplication and to promote a joined-up response, in a bid to maximise impact and good practice, to support those in need.”

Funding for the ADCRF currently comes from Harvest Church, Alton Lions, and from Hampshire County Council’s Connect4Communities Fund.

If you are in need, the Alton & District Community Relief Fund may be able to help you.

You will need to be referred, either by a GP Social Prescriber, a Social Worker, a church or a school.

To apply you can visit the website and submit an application form - altoncommrelief.org.uk or send an email to info@altoncommrelief.org.uk

Alton Arts Festival tickets on sale now

Alton Maltings provides a key venue for the inaugural Alton Arts Festival, a not-for-profit celebration of the arts, creativity and community.

Tickets are on sale now for the Alton Arts Festival. Arts lovers will be able to purchase tickets for a range of comedy and music gigs, art workshops, literary discussions, and theatre shows.

"We're so proud to get the majority of this amazing programme on sale," says Chair Annie Lancaster. "It has been a Herculean effort by our programme leads to bring this eclectic range of events to the festival. Having seen how quickly tickets were snapped up for the first wave, we're urging people to act fast – some of our venues are very intimate and the workshops in particular are designed for small groups, so will sell out quickly."

The stone-sculpting workshop with David Wilkins sold out within the first week of going on sale last month, and AAF has issued low-ticket warnings on a number of music events.

"But fear not – this second wave is much bigger than the first, so we hope there's something to catch everyone's interest," adds Annie.

Events going on sale today include Carmody, recently crowned "South London's electronic soul queen" and known for her hit 'Paradise', which featured in the hit Netflix series Heartstopper. Also in the music programme is a special performance by Grammy-award nominated Richard Walters – his only solo show for 2024 – which will feature songs written specially for and about Alton. Richard will be joined by renowned author and illustrator, and former Waterstones children's laureate, Chris Riddell, who will be live-illustrating Richard's music in a unique and collaborative performance.

From the literature programme, highlights include the 'Writers on Writers' panel, where crime authors BA Paris, Sophie Hannah and Simon Toyne will discuss what it takes to plot multiple murders, and the historical fiction panel, during which four authors will share their thoughts on the importance of place in historical novels in the evocative setting of St Nicholas' Church, Chawton.

For those keen to explore new skills in visual arts, there are more workshops coming your way, including life drawing, the use of pastels, watercolour painting, how to draw a bird with artist Paul Harfleet, how to make a contemporary textile wall hanging with Hilary Kimber, and an artistic exploration of nature with Tozzy Bridger.

"This is just a handful of the events that are going on sale. There's also comedy, theatre, classical music, and so much more. Alton will be overflowing with creativity," says Annie.

Information about the events can be found via the website, www.altonartsfestival.com/acts and tickets are on sale through ticketing platform WeGotTickets.

What is AAF fundraising for?

"Alton Arts Festival is designed to be self-funding and not-for-profit, with all events priced to cover their own costs," says Annie. "However, we are also putting on an ambitious outreach programme, which will go into about 14 primary schools during the week of the festival. This will benefit around 2800 local children in the Alton cluster – ensuring that even those children who wouldn't normally be able to attend events like these with their families get the opportunity to experience the arts. We have made great headway raising money to cover the cost of this programme so that it is entirely free to schools, but there's still some way to go. If you'd be interested in supporting this programme either as a private donor or through business sponsorship, please contact info@altonartsfestival.com."

I can't wait to get stuck into all we have planned for the summer term. Over the next few months we have a full schedule for The Source on Sunday mornings. I really hope you can join us and have fun exploring what it means to be a Christian.

Whilst our younger groups make some furry friends, our Delta Youth have challenged their leaders to take on some tough topics. Want to know more about creation? Miracles? These are some of the big questions on the minds of our teens that we will cover this term.
