The History of Boxing

Once considered the gentlemen's sport, Boxing, involving attack and defense with the fists, has come a long way. Boxers usually wear padded gloves and generally observe the code outlined in the marquis of Queensberry rules. Matched in weight and ability, boxing contestants try to land blows hard and often with their fists, each attempting to avoid the opponent's blows.

Appearing as a formal Olympic event in the 23rd Olympiad (688 BCE), fist-fighting contests must undoubtedly have originated in humankind's prehistory. The earliest visual evidence for boxing appears in Sumerian relief carvings from the 3rd millennium BCE. A relief sculpture from Egyptian Thebes (c. 1350 BCE) shows both boxers and spectators. The few extant Middle Eastern and Egyptian depictions are of bare-fisted contests with, at most, a simple band supporting the wrist. The earliest evidence of the use of gloves or hand coverings in boxing is a carved vase from Minoan Crete (c. 1500 BCE) that shows helmeted boxers wearing a stiff plate strapped to the fist.

The earliest evidence of rules for the sport comes from ancient Greece. These ancient contests had no rounds. Contestants represented all social classes; in the early years of the major athletic festivals, a preponderance of the boxers came from wealthy and distinguished backgrounds.

Today, boxing is revered and respected as a full-body workout. Boxing requires rapid movement and a variety of different muscles, which can increase your cardio endurance, help you lose weight, and strengthen your heart.

TOP FORM BOXING

TOP FORM

Today, Boxing is valued and respected for more than its entertainment value. There's not a muscle that goes unworked—delivering an incredible cardiovascular workout. The impact forces of hitting boxing pads/bags transmit forces through the bones and trigger an increase in bone mineral density. Boxing-Training is a great way to channel your energy safely and effectively to relieve stress and maximize physical and mental health benefits

TOP FORM emerged, spawned in Munich, Germany, amidst a plethora of revolutionary forward thinkers of the German industrial community and a long history of European innovation and design concepts. TOP FORM branded products are synonymous with qualitative design, functionality, and value. Back in the early 90's TOP FORM set out to introduce lifestyle products rich in aesthetic design and functionality. Affectionately referred to as "Functional Art," many of our iconic fitness and lifestyle designs helped establish our powerful legacy, which evolved using kinesiology, ergonomics, and sports biomechanics.

TOP FORM Boxing Gear made its debut in 1997 in the European Welterweight sector. Dazzling athletes and onlookers with protective athletic apparel and accessories for Boxing & Mixed Martial Arts. BAG GLOVES

This is the first glove you'll use before moving onto a sparring or fighting glove. Training on a punching bag will help you to develop or sharpen your style and technique.

TRAINING / FITNESS

These are the most common gloves. You can use them to train at home or at the gym. These gloves come in a wide range of colors and weights. The weight size you choose should be based on four major factors: hand size, height, weight, and muscle development.

FIGHTING

Fighting or competition gloves are used in boxing matches. The boxing gloves weight is usually 8oz, 10oz, 12oz, 14oz, or 16oz depending on the type of fight or promoter. The two types of fighting boxing gloves we sell are lace ups and general gloves.

Selecting the right materials and supplies to get the job done safely is of the utmost precedence. At TOP FORM we design our gloves from the inside out, the main objective is to create a glove that feels right, fits comfortably and doesn't force your hand into unnatural positions.
