You plan your first meet and greet for weeks- you receive several inquiries, and you send out invitations. Only 3 out of the 12 women show up on the day of the meet and greet. Your sorority sisters warned you this would happen timing, Life, kids, dates, whatever the reason the attendance was low. You are ready to host the meet and greet and tell the three women in attendance about your sorority. Although all 12 didn't show up, you still have three women interested. You gave these three women your undivided attention, although you are still fighting with the fact that all 12 didn't show up. Although you give them your all, you feel like they're not interested. To your surprise, they all pay the $25 application fee and take home the applications. _____

Your chapter has planned a cabaret and given away 100 tickets; you later find out from the venue that you must have a million-dollar insurance policy to hold the event. You have used all the chapter funds on the venue, DJ, decorations, and food. You now must come up with an additional 300 dollars to purchase the insurance policy. You can't use your money, and your Sorors say they don't have it. You have two weeks to come up with $300. You decided the easiest thing to do was to have a 50/50 raffle. You print up some generic tickets on your printer and mail some to your Sorors in other chapters, explaining what's going on and the urgency. Not only do you sell all 1000 printed tickets to make the money for the insurance policy, but you also have an extra $200.

Your chapter finally has a clubhouse; you guys have decided to do monthly fundraisers to lower the cost, and each member is paying $75 out of pocket. At the chapter meeting, the Chapter president is going on and on about members not contributing as far as meetings and participation; she's aiming it at one particular member; she does not know that this member's participation is down because she's been working extra hours and donating the money directly to the treasury as an "anonymous source" to pay the electric and gas bill so that it doesn't need to be paid out of sorority funds. During the entire meeting, the member being targeted says nothing about why she's not participating or what she's doing. She decides not to argue or tell what she has been doing; she will continue with her purpose, regardless of what the President says. _____

Your line sister #5 confides in you that she has been struggling to pay her bills and will be homeless in a matter of days. You do not have the space at your house, but you know another line sister, #7, does. You call #7 and explain what's going on, and you also let her know it's to go no further, even if she can't help. #7 says I can give her the money to help her catch up on her rent; it is not a loan. #5 does not need to pay it back. You're at a sorority event and ask #5 to walk you to the store. #7 decides to tag along. While walking, you and #7 present her with an envelope and tell her to pay her rent; it's not a loan; don't worry about paying it back; it's to help you get right, and no other members will ever know about this.

It's time for the annual sisterhood weekend. Nationals sends you four free tickets, one for you as President and 3 for other sisters of your choosing. You give away, without hesitation, to 2 Sorors who authentically deserve to be there. For the fourth ticket, you have two Neos, equally deserving, the #5 and #7. You chose to give it to #5; the decision was straightforward. They both deserved it, but you followed the rules, so you know that it's fair and undebatable.

You are offered a check for $50,000 if you allow CCTV to record your initiation process and air parts of it in a short film. You know that this is against sorority guidelines and that the sorority will act against you and CCTV for violating the confidentiality agreement. Your husband tells you to spark up a deal on the side, not to show faces or mention the sorority name. CCTV Agrees. Nationals view the documentary's airing and know this is their sorority, although names, places, and people have been kept confidential. After an internal investigation, they pinpoint your chapter, and the chapter is suspended, memberships revoked, and a civil suit has been filed.

You have been a member of the sorority for five years; in those five years, there have been some good, some bad, and some ugly. You are starting to feel burnt out, so you decide that you need to take a break. You don't pay your annual dues, so you are inactive for the current year. You still attend events when you can and represent the sorority. You go to a sorority event for another organization, and they ask you if you're interested in joining, and you say sure. Do you think it's something new? I'm not currently active. I may not get burnt out with this sorority. You go to the interest meeting, fill out the app, get to your interview, and they ask you if you have ever been in a sorority. You tell them yes, Lambda Kappa Omega. They ask why you left, and you begin to tell them everything that burnt you out. A few days later, the sorority contacted Lko and told us you applied. At the same time, you get a letter saying your application was rejected.

- Please Note Lambda Kappa Omega Sorority, has accepted members from other sororities. However, we accept with extreme caution.
