He explained that the success of the “Evening on Chase Creek Event” prompted the business community to close Chase Creek Street once a month and offer additional attractions like food vendors and entertainment hoping to boost business in the area. The only support they are asking from the town is to borrow barricades and permission to close the street. The business community will be responsible for the trash and rental of port-a-johns.

The primary concern from emergency response personnel, Police Chief and Fire Chief, was that the road closure should be limited from Palacio Loop to the Historical Society Museum, leaving traffic access for emergency purposes. Although portable signs would be allowed along the street to direct customers to businesses since they could easily be removed if needed.
