

Toilet Training Policy

I. When to Toilet Train

We believe that each child has his/her own time table of development. Please refrain from comparing your child to another. A child indicates readiness for toilet training when he/she has ability to:

- follow simple instructions
- understand words about the toileting process
- control muscles responsible for elimination
- express a need to 'go' verbally
- keep a diaper dry for 2 hours or more
- get to the potty, sit on it, and then get off of the potty
- pull down diaper, disposable training pant, or underpants
- a desire to use the toilet

II. Parent and Provider:

Parents begin training at home first. Until a child meets the underpants criteria, he/she will continue to wear a diaper (not pull-ups) to school. See section III.

- Provider will offer the toilet throughout the day upon child's request.
- Provider will assist when an accident occur and always in a positive context.
- Provider will ensure that hands are washed.
- Parents will provide a supply of pull-ups or underwear (if in that phase) and at least two changes of clothing. Clothing should be easy for the child to remove by him/herself, thus promoting independence. We ask that they don't wear overalls, onesies, tights, belts, etc..., during this process. Elastic waist pants are the easiest while potty training.
- Clothes soiled will be bagged for parents to take home.
- Parent and Provider will communicate about the toilet process.

III. A Child is Ready to Wear Underpants at Day Care When:

- After seven consecutively dry (urine and bowel) days (at home and/or daycare), the child may move into the pull-up or underpants phase at day care. In group care, such as ours, we must be careful not to spread bacteria that can come from feces escaping from underpants. If
