

(A deep Louisiana Cajun gator hunter's voice, slow and thick with a bayou drawl)

Well, looky here, cher. Old Jacques has been lookin' over these scorecards, and I got two things to tell ya' about this league, the way a man knows his trap lines.

The Forty-Shooters in Week 11

Dey call dis' a "40" in Week 11. Dat's like a gator that got away clean, a big number dat hurt the score. Some of these folks, they got tangled up in the weeds on dat final week, mais.

- Jason Conn and Joe Rudd from Shark Bait: Looks like those two boys went out in the same skiff and both let a 40 slip by. That's a rough day for the 'Bait.
- Aaron Kotopka from Identifies as Ham: Aaron also got himself a 40. Musta been a big one he was chasin'.
- Bob Henderson from 1st Last Second: A 40 for Bob, too. Maybe he shoulda waited for the second last second, eh?
- David Arteaga from Eagle Fang: Dat's a 40 right there. Better luck next time, mon ami.

The Teams That Are Sharpenin' Their Teeth

Now, a good gator hunter don't just look at one day, he looks at the whole season. We lookin' at the difference between Week 1 and Week 11 average scores to see who's learnin' the swamp. When the score gets smaller, dat means they gittin' better.

The following teams, they been choppin' their scores down, showin' a true hunter's grit, with a lower average score in Week 11 than Week 1:

- The Vinnies done showed the most improvement, droppin' their average score by 9.20 strokes. Dat's like findin' a hidden deep-water hole, dat is!
- SAFETY! also tightened up their shot, with an improvement of 7.20 strokes. When you see improvement like dat, you know they ain't playin' around.
- Furry Balls cut their average by 3.00 strokes. Every stroke is a pound of meat in the sack, cher.
- Underdogs shaved off 2.25 strokes from their average. Dem Underdogs are lookin' a little more like big swamp dogs now.
- Shark Bait managed to find a small cut of 0.40 strokes better, even with them two 40s in Week 11. A little improvement is better than none at all.
