

SHERI YOUNG

- Speaker
- Coach
- Trainer

TEAM CONNECTION LOSING MAYA IN THE RING

Connection is critical to success

You are hard-wired to connect. Your ability to connect to others, and yourself, is critical to your success.

In this energized, hilarious keynote, Sheri talks about how losing her show dog Samoyed Maya in the conformation ring teaches valuable insights and lessons about leadership, connection, training and communication with your team.

Participants learn the importance of showing up at work connected to their purpose, and leave re-energized with strategies to build meaningful relationships with their teams, colleagues and clients.

Like Sheri's puppy Bijou, being clear on who you are inspires others to connect and try new things, resulting in thriving dynamic workplaces with less stress, anxiety and drama.

OUTCOMES AND IMPACTS

LEADERSHIP

Participants discover the importance of being grounded in their daily leadership and connected to their purpose. Thriving leaders are present in the moment, listen intently to others, develop meaningful, authentic business relationships.

CONNECTION

Leaders learn ways to tap into their unique superpower of connection to deliver extraordinary performance and results.

TEAMS

Executives are equipped with techniques to better manage diverse talented teams of leaders with very different personalities and leadership styles.

LinkedIn

connect@surthrive.life

www.surthrive.life

Sheri Young

Sheri's been an entrepreneur and an executive in the public, private and not for profit sector for 40 years.

What she experienced about connection, human behaviour and leadership in and around dog shows blew her mind.

Valuable lessons about connection, that the significance of showing up in touch with and as your best self, became evident as she developed a working relationship with her Samoyeds that took joy and purpose to new levels.

Author, Entrepreneur, Speaker

Sheri Young takes more than 40 years of senior executive leadership experience in the private, public and not for profit sectors to empower leaders to create meaningful connections to thrive in dynamic workplaces through lessons learned from her dog show Samoyeds.

EDUCATION

Sheri holds a BA (Political Science) from Carleton University, as well as a post-graduate BAA (Journalism) from Ryerson University. Sheri also holds the ICD.D designation from the Institute of Corporate Directors, Rotman School of Management, University of Toronto.

LinkedIn

connect@surthrive.life

www.surthrive.life

CAPS
FOUNDATION