

Amy Layne Litzelman has learned the joy of allowing God to be profound in her simplicity. Through the ups and downs, she has discovered a Creator who wants to be seen in the details, known in the mysteries, and trusted with every breath.

As an author, teacher, and worship mentor, Amy shares stories from her journey to teach others to recognize, know, and walk intimately with God. In this, we each become who we were uniquely created to be and partner with the Holy Spirit in unexpected ways. Amy is also a journalist, singer-songwriter, musician, foodie, wife, mom, and grandma. She and her husband, Matt, live near Dillon, MT.
