

BT Maritime Services

Good communications at sea are crucial. And BT Maritime Services – the world's foremost pioneers in maritime communications – ensure that, wherever they are in the world, ships can maintain the vital communication links they need.

No matter what the size of the vessel, whether it be a trawler or a tanker, a cruise ship, coaster or sailing boat, Maritime Services offer a range of communications options which meet the needs of all sections of the maritime community.

With their terrestrial radiotelephone, radiotelex and wireless telegraphy services – operated through Portishead Communications Centre and the coast radio station network – and with satellite access for telephone, telex, fax and data via the land earth station at Goonhilly, Maritime Services provide the highest standards of reliability, efficiency and flexibility.
