

My ArchiSchool to run symposium for aspiring architects in Hong Kong

Dezeen staff | 4 hours ago

Dezeen promotion: children between six and 18 years old can get a taste of the world of architecture at the first-ever International Youth ArchiDesign 2020 event, organised by Hong Kong education institute My ArchiSchool.

Set to take place on 6 December to mark the school's fourth anniversary, the event is designed to "rally the young talents of architectural design who will build our future world" and to help them "develop their full potential of creativity".

Top image: Queenie Sun created a physical model of her Green Home design. Above: model of Victoria Harbour, Hong Kong, by Oscar Chung

The day will introduce kids to the realities of the profession over a series of workshops, ranging from digital and real-life modelling lessons to a lecture about Asian architectural heritage and a run-through of a day in the life of an architect.

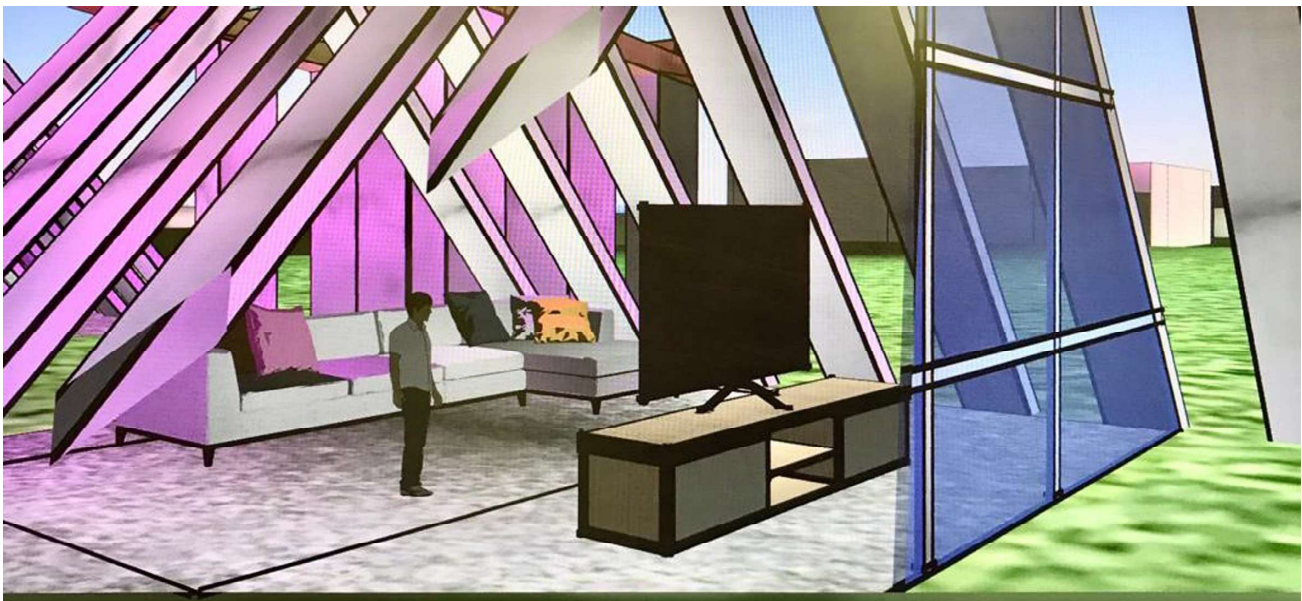

Speakers will include several practising professionals as well as professor Ho Puay Peng, who heads up the National University of Singapore's architecture department and is the UNESCO chair of architectural heritage conservation and management in Asia.

Abigail Shih designed her green school to have a connection with the urban environment

Representatives from British and European architecture schools will be available for Zoom consultations with families to discuss possible pathways for studying abroad.

The school's annual architectural design exhibition of student work will be shown as part of the Youth ArchiDesign 2020 event, as its usual showcase at the Hong Kong Trade Development Council's DesignInsire was cancelled this year due to the ongoing coronavirus pandemic.

Alanna Mak designed a cosy home interior to bring elements of the outside in create a physical and digital model for a building, with the final results on snow as part of the exhibition.

Antonia Villet created a model of a floating restaurant for the school's Architectural Design Award

Read more: Architecture | Hong Kong | Promotions | Architecture and design events

Subscribe to our newsletters

Email*

Next

More images

Share and comment

Leave a comment

More
Architecture
Interiors
Design
Coronavirus

Recommended stories

Kube pavilion by OMA opens outside K11 Musea in Hong Kong

Thirty bathroom designs by architects

Kris Provoost captures "immense density" of Hong Kong's housing

Run Run Run cafe has a hanging garden and see-through showers