Dogs are sent to us for different reasons, and I believe Sydnee was sent to teach me. Sydnee has been a Slipcollar Covergirl before, in 2016, when she amused people with her strange but comical quirks. She was on the brink of trialing in flyball, agility and obedience, and all of the hard parts of her training were behind her. Fast forward 2 years, and she has retired from flyball after a grand total of 3 competitions, and she did not start her agility or Obedience careers.

Seemingly overnight, my laid back, friendly, confident, well socialised cocker spaniel had turned into a snarling, barking, lunging monster at the mere sight of another dog. I can pinpoint the moment it happened. A dog who had reacted to Sydnee many times in the past lunged at her, and Sydnee, having never retaliated before, gave back as good as she got. I was shocked at her reaction but passed it off as a one-off. Over the next twelve months, there were many more of these 'one-offs', and she had definitely made some 'enemies' of particular dogs. The incidents weren't frequent enough for me to get too worried though, so I just kept her out of the path of the dogs she didn't like.

In early 2018, my older dog, Alison, was diagnosed with a serious illness, and she became the focus of my attention for the next 8 months. During this time Sydnee's ever growing list of 'enemies' had extended to pretty much every new dog that she met, along with quite a number of former 'friends'. I had now started calling Sydnee a reactive dog, and was very embarrassed by her behaviour. Every time she put on a scene, I would tell her off and remove her from the situation. However, on a whole, although walking from the car to class was a nightmare, once she started class, she was focussed and worked well, so I felt like I was doing a reasonable job of managing Sydnee's behaviour. This was until Sydnee had a fight in class. I did not know if she started it, but it frightened me to know that I now could not trust Sydnee off leash .

At home, Sydnee, who had always been slightly obsessive with toys, had begun guarding her possessions and even her space (my bed, my bedroom, the lounge room and the car), snarling, jumping on and attacking my 12 year old, very unwell dog. This happened a couple of times per week, but never resulted in injury to either dog. She had also started barking incessantly, seemingly at nothing.

I knew Sydnee wasn't doing great, and that I probably needed to do something to help her, but by this stage, Alison was getting worse, and I knew that I did not have long left with her, so all of my energy was focused on making her life as comfortable as possible. All I could manage was to enrol Sydnee in a course for reactive dogs, but this didn't really change anything with her behaviour. People at the club were very helpful, but by and large, because I was now extremely good at managing Sydnee in public, and hid her issues well, they didn't realise her problems were as severe as they were.

Alison passed away at the end of August last year, and I was gutted. Despite this, I felt that the best thing for Sydnee was to get a pup as soon as possible, so that she did not get an opportunity to be an only dog. Knowing Sydnee was reactive, I did my research, and did all of the right things with the introduction of Finley, the Working Cocker Spaniel, when he arrived 3 weeks later. All went well for about 30 seconds, and then Sydnee attacked the pup. She did not harm him, but this was the wake up call that I had needed.

I immediately began researching as much as I could about dog behavioural problems and aggression, and it became obvious very quickly that Sydnee was suffering from severe anxiety, and helping her was going to take more than what I could learn from a book and manage on my own.

I booked her an appointment with our vet, and she was put onto medication to help with her anxiety. I also sought recommendations for a professional trainer to help me with Sydnee. We ended up having 4 sessions with a wonderful trainer over the following 3 months, and Sydnee has come a long way. It was not easy - the dogs needed to be kept completely separate for nearly 3 months before finally being able to be off leash at home together, which was nearly impossible to manage. I

It was hard work - I had to dedicate hours of time to working with Sydnee, whilst at the same time trying to socialise Finley and give him as many positive experiences as I could. It is still not perfect, and never will be - Sydnee still reacts to Finley at times. Sydnee still has trouble meeting most dogs, and we are yet to be able to return to training. That said, Sydnee loves playing with Finley, either chasing him, wrestling with him, or playing with the ball, which is somewhere I never thought I would get to.

Looking back, although Sydnee was always genetically predisposed to being an anxious dog, there were triggers that, although minor at the time, most likely contributed to the development of her anxiety related aggression. It wasn't a sudden change, like I had thought, but a gradual escalation. There were also a number of things I did or did not do, that were not helpful for Sydnee. The number one thing I did not do was get help early. Sydnee's problems would have been a simple fix if I had admitted that she had issues 12 months before I did.

It is not easy to admit that you have a dog with a problem, so reason I am telling Sydnee's story is to let people who have dogs that exhibit behaviors that worry them, that they are not alone. In actual fact, these types of behaviors are very common, and can often be easily managed. The four pieces of advice I would offer to anyone who thinks their dog may have a problem are:

- Don't be embarrassed or ashamed to tell people your dog has an issue - they are more likely to be understanding or helpful if they know.
- Get help early. If you ignore this type of behaviour, it won't go away - every time your dog has the chance to rehearse the behavior, it will escalate. Help may be in the form of asking an instructor at the club, reading books, chatting to other dog owners, or, in severe cases like Sydnee, getting veterinary advice and working with a professional trainer.
- Don't be scared of being assertive and advocating for your dog. If you don't want your dog to interact with a particular dog or person, it's absolutely fine to politely tell people that your dog is working through some issues and you would prefer if he/she did not interact at this point.
- Don't get angry at your dog. Your dog is most likely scared, and you are one of the only things in the world that bring them comfort.

And for those lucky ones out there that have a laid back, dog-friendly, people-friendly superpup, if you see a member with a wild, lunging nut-case of a dog, please remember that the owner is at the club, being responsible, and doing their best to help the dog. They are most likely upset and embarrassed by the way their dog is behaving. A friendly smile is all it takes sometimes, to realise that people do understand, and are not judging you by the way your dog is behaving.

Does My Dog Love Other Dogs?

Just like people, dogs have different levels of tolerance for other dogs.

As a dog matures, he or she will often quite naturally become less social and tolerant. There are many developmental changes that happen between sexual and social maturity, and most dogs will continue to display these changes until two to three years of age. Proper facilitation of dog-dog introductions and friendships can change your dog's sociability for the better over time, and bad experiences can quickly make things worse. Good leadership and direction is important to set your dog up for success with their species.

DOG SOCIAL

I generally LOVE all dogs, even the ones who get in my face and do rude, annoying stuff. I am either a PUPPY or a VERY SOCIAL ADULT.

*Most puppies start here

DOG TOLERANT

I get along with most dogs. I am generally tolerant of rude behavior, and stay pretty calm on leash. I'm cool and relaxed, and have good communication skills.

DOG SELECTIVE

I have dog friends but am picky about new dogs. Seeing unfamiliar dogs when I am on leash is really stressful. I don't cope well with some types of dogs or styles of interaction. I need human supervision, positive guidance, and proper introductions.

DOG AGGRESSIVE

NOPE. Not into other dogs. If I have to select 1 or 2 dog friends, I am super sensitive around them too, and may act like a jerk when triggered. I need extra management and patience from my humans, whom I love more than dogs!

A dog's social tolerance changes over time and is flexible and manageable!

Obedience Report

Hello and Welcome to members old and new for another year of obedience 2019. Unfortunately the weather deemed it impossible for us to re-start our training at the start of February as per usual. You would have to agree that we had a lot of really hot Sundays, making it impossible to run classes comfortably. However better late than never, we are up and running smoothly again now.

Once again we have had a large influx of new handlers and puppies joining us. We welcome you, and hope that your time here at Para is an enjoyable experience, as you meet new friends and learn new things with your dogs. As you start off on your obedience journey, I urge you to stay back after class and observe some of the higher classes later on in the morning. All of these people with their dogs started off in the puppy classes like you and have now gone on to progress and learn new advancement obedience exercises.

Please know that if you are struggling, or are worried about anything in your class, don't hesitate to stay back after class and speak to your instructor. All of our Instructors are here to help you in any capacity. Also there is no set time for you and your dog to graduate to a higher class. Some dogs learn quicker than others, depending on the circumstances. Just enjoy the challenges as they come up, and work together as a team. The time you spend with your dog has to be one of the most rewarding experiences.

Lastly, we are all volunteers here at Para giving our time and knowledge to make the club as successful as it is. Therefore if you can help in any capacity at all, even once a month it would be most appreciated. We always seem to need help in the office or the shop when regular people are away or sick. Just speak to any Instructor if you can help us. We will be running our monthly raffles once again this year as they have been very successful. Tickets can be bought at the table in front of the office. Thank you and happy training to all.

Jan Cooper Head Obedience Instructor.

Dancing with Dogs Report

Flyball Report

Well we have been off to a funny start for training this year. After training regularly in February we then missed just about the entire month of March due to public holidays and hot weather. Hopefully now the worst of the heat is over and we will get some solid training in before the start of the rain in winter begins to affect training. The weather aside it has been a good start to the training year. We have had a few new faces and dogs coming down to training and all are progressing very well with their skills. With the average age of our current racing dogs veterans (7 years) age it is always good to get new dogs started with training. Remember any dog over the age of 12 months can start flyball training so feel free to come down on a Monday night to see what it is all about.

We are now looking towards our first competition for the year which will be at Dover Gardens on Saturday May 4th. At this stage we will have 3 teams entered so teams are busy working on their times, tactics and race strategies for the day. It is hoped that we can continue with the racing success that our club had last year after we finished the final competition of 2018 in first, second and third places which was also at a competition at Dover. 2018 overall was one of our most successful racing years so fingers crossed we continue on our winning ways in 2019.

Thank you from Sharon Page

I'd like to thank all the lovely people who helped me last year following a bad fall I had in September resulting in a fractured pelvis. A very special thank you to Margaret (our office person) who tirelessly drove me around to the club, took me shopping, picked up the floats for the club and then delivered them back, drove me to the bank and various activities so I wouldn't miss out. Thank you all for the various food that was delivered to my house throughout October. Thanks also for the many visits I had while I was in hospital for nine long days, the flowers and card from my much loved dog club family, work mates and of course my own family. I felt very blessed to have had so much help from you all. I'll still have to have surgery to correct what I've damaged but that's not till July, so onwards and upwards for now.

Canine massage therapy is a form of alternative therapy that promotes a dog's health. It is proven that the touch given to a dog through massage can improve not only a dog's physical but also his mental and emotional well-being. Massages are great for dogs who suffer from nervousness, anxiousness, hyperactivity, arthritis, hip dysplasia and recovery from surgery. Dog massage benefits include:

- Relaxation
- Increased oxygenation of the blood
- Pain relief
- Improved flexibility
- Improved immune system
- Reduced age-related issues
- Reduced arthritis and hip dysplasia discomfort
- Muscle tension, soreness, weakness and spasm relief

Regular massage assists the healing from the normal wear and tear of muscles, tendons, ligaments, skin and fascia that dogs have from romping and playing. Massage supports the balance and circulation of fluids within the fascia. The movement of water within the tissues controls the temperatures throughout their bodies, including core temperatures, organ temperatures.

I have been in business for 5 years and in that time I have sponsored several clubs in Agility and obedience and sponsoring the State and National Agility Championships. It was at the Victorian Agility Nationals in 2018 that I purchased the Accell Therapy Mat and Handheld machine. These are fantastic in that they are an exceptional tool to allow a very deep massage without the pain that a deep tissue hand massage would give. The dogs can lay on the mat while the 3D circular vibration goes through 4 feet of bone and 2 feet of tissue to the cell level. This vibration therapy gives fantastic results with pain relief and rehabilitation after and before surgery. For athletic dogs it's a great aid to movement, length of stride and reduction of lactic acid buildup after the excitement of running and performing through the day.

I travel to you so that your dog can be in the comfort of their own surroundings; they can be relaxed and accepting of the massage treatment.

My fees are very affordable $40 which includes the initial assessment of movement/gait and collection of medical history.

I am a qualified Remedial and Reiki Canine Massage Therapist, also qualified for human Reiki treatments.

AGM OF PDODC 25th NOVEMBER 2018

TREASURER'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDING 31st OCTOBER 2018

Para District Obedience Dog Club has had a successful year and has closed the year with a surplus.

As in previous years, an audit of PDODC's books was carried out by Nationwide Business Solutions of Mawson Lakes.

	Oct 2018	Oct 2017
We closed the year with a total income of	$32,024.46	$30,134.36
Our total cost of sales for the same period was	$ 3,169.83	$ 4,747.90
Out total expenses for the same period was	$25,263.39	$25,903.89
(this includes depreciation of $2,771.99)
This leaves us with a surplus of	$ 3,591.24	- $ 517.43
Our total cash at bank as of the 31 st October 2018	$17,251.89	$14,479.33
Out total assets held as of the 31 st October 2018	$60,109.05	$56,517.81
(as per Balance Sheet, including cash at bank, equipment & saleable stock).

We closed the year with approx. 360 members.

I would like to thank all club committee & volunteers this year for their efforts. I would also like to recognise and thank our sponsors and supporters for their generosity.

A massive thanks must go to my trusty assistant Sharon Page, who always holds things together whilst I spend most of the winter months running around in the forest & travelling interstate with my partner & our dogs to compete in dog sledding! And even after having a terrible hip injury, still only had me do the banking for 2 weeks! Thank you Sharon, I'd be lost without your support.

And of course, thank you to all our members and anyone else I may have forgotten!

I hope the club continues its success throughout 2019.

I hereby commend this report to the floor for vote of acceptance.
