

"Friendship"

Friendship is a feeling you share with someone close
With that special friend its not hard to open up your very soul
It becomes a bond between two people who trust each other most
Its patience when one is tired and the other's on a roll
Its laughter when ones upset and all the chips are down
Being able to say you're sorry, to forgive yourself and then forgive the other

Its taking turns when its not your turn when it comes around
Its a feeling you have for this person like you'd have for a sister or a brother

Sometimes it has to open up and give a little space
Letting go, stepping back, learning not to smother
But being close enough to wipe a tear from a crying face
Trying hard to listen pretending not to shudder
Its a great thing you can count on, during moments of great pain
Its there when the world casts you aside
Its something you hope will grow, yet forever stay the same
Its something you hold in your heart and cherish with great pride
