

Springboard Athletic Connections Corp. Provides Details on Their Platform

Springboard is a digital platform to connect talented athletes and sports institutions.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia - Aug. 13, 2021 - PRLog -- Athletic scholarships can be confusing: limited information available, different rules and deadlines, high demand and unyielding competition. That is why many skilled students do not get recruited or awarded scholarships. With such high college costs, it makes sense to get all the possible help when paying for post-secondary education. Moreover, receiving an athletic scholarship can make the transition to university much more accessible. The good news is that scholarships are available year-round, so it is possible to apply for them anytime. But in general, it is recommended to start the process well in advance, such as when high school starts. Understanding the process is sure to help future students narrow down their post-secondary options and make the right decision.

Springboard cares about young athletes' success and provides information on colleges and scholarships to maximize the chances of success in the recruiting process. There is a vast amount of data and facts about each college, including financial aid, athletic scholarships, demographic, geographic, and academic information. Student athletes start with creating a Springboard account and keep all their academic and athletic information in one place. College coaches and recruiters have access to students' profiles with highlights, preferences, and general information making it easier to evaluate students from the comfort of their own devices. With a Springboard account, it is possible to keep the application and search process organized, easy, and efficient both for students as well as coaches and recruiters. This makes the Springboard project unique and innovative, connecting talented athletes and sports agents together.
