

Springboard Athletic Connections Corp.'s Plans Due to COVID-19

An innovative digital solution that helps young athletes to succeed in the professional sports recruiting process and provides comprehensive information on college and university scholarships.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia - March 1, 2021 - PRLog -- Undoubtedly, the whole world suffered a significant setback due to the pandemic. New challenges are there, and unexpected situations may occur at any time. Many things happened, and many things changed during the last year. But despite all the difficulties, the CEO of Springboard Athletic Connections Corp., Rajdeep Singh, is excited to work on the project in this challenging situation, adding that "Every action has some reaction in different ways. Finding out the unique way to cope with such a challenge will bring our business to a new level." Mr. Singh plans to boost the morale of both the company and prospective clients. "Our process will begin with adding a dedicated section to our platform focused on:

- understanding the impact of COVID on youth athletes
- preventative guidelines and precautions
- updating our team and client regarding current and proposed changes connected to COVID's effect on the world of student athletics.

We believe people should be aware that sports and other physical activities can be a positive force in the public's response to the pandemic," says Mr.Singh.

Springboard is committed to developing a convenient digital platform to collaborate and communicate effectively between athletes and sports institutions. The application allows students to showcase their talent across Canada, which is the easiest way for recruiters to find suitable athletes.

About Springboard Athletic Connections Corp.: Springboard is a unique digital solution engineered to help kids and their parents prepare for professional sports recruiters and university/college scholarships. The application provides the most recent, comprehensive, and useful statistical information on college athletic scholarships and participation requirements at the school level.
