Kidney Contenders: What is unique about issues circumventing El Paso County 16th congressional district in Texas?

SFC Williams: El Paso County lacks progress with employment opportunities outside of the service industry. The county lacks visibility of financial spending for the city.

Kidney Contenders: Which public health policies have El Paso County’s 16th congressional district constituents concerned about?

SFC Williams: Diabetes, heart disease, and obesity are physical health matters of concern. The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services shows chronic kidney disease Medicare population in El Paso accounts for more than 29%. Escalating border issues, including human trafficking and homelessness, are social health matters of concern.

Kidney Contenders: How have your years of military service in the United States Army prepared you for your congressional run?

SFC Williams: As a non-commissioned officer, I was the bumper between the officers and the soldiers. I handled infrastructure projects in Iraq. I know how cost analysis works, I understand how things should operate. The federal government mentions there is a rise in veteran homelessness, for example. The federal government lacks resolution for veteran homelessness; I have the blueprints for resolving veteran homelessness and it starts with removing private contractors and reinstating military control.

Kidney Contenders: Overall, who do you contend for?

SFC Williams: I contend for every American. Congressional representatives introduce bills and resolutions that will impact their congressional district, states, country, and even the world. I contend for every American on this world stage.
