What happens when a diverse group of bright & informed people sits down together to discuss some current political topic or social issue about which they hold substantially differing positions?

Tell Me More... is a new weekly podcast (debuting May 2021) that aims for the precise opposite of a debate or argument. Moderated by Matt Lehrman, each episode features a small group of people who are genuinely interested in exploring, understanding, and reflecting upon each other's different positions.

Would you enjoy taking part in an inclusive and courageous conversation that asks you to hear other perspectives and consider new possibilities? We are searching nationally for a wide range of discussion participants. Interested?
