— THE IMPACT OF — LUPUS IN AMERICA

Our impact:

The burden of lupus on daily life can be devastating. 65% of people with lupus say chronic pain is the most difficult part of having lupus, 76% of lupus patients say fatigue caused by lupus has forced them to cut back on social activities, 89% of people with lupus say they can no longer work full-time due to lupus complications.

The Lupus Foundation of America has been leading the fight against lupus for over 40 years. The LFA is dedicated to improving the quality of life for all people affected by lupus through programs of research, education, support groups.

Our programs:

The National Resource Center on Lupus provides information and support for anyone affected by lupus, including people diagnosed with lupus, children and teens, caregivers, health care professionals and the public. The Resource Center aims to empower, educate and connect through trustworthy, reliable and high-quality resources that provide emotional support and clear, accurate health information.

The LFA provides answers to questions and gives caring support to people with lupus and their loved ones. Money raised is used to support lupus research, education and advocacy programs that serve to improve the quality of life for all people with lupus.

90% of people with lupus are women.
Men can also develop lupus.

Get involved:

Through the National Ambassador Program, we are dedicated and committed volunteers partnering with the lupus Foundation of America to expand outreach and the impact by raising awareness and educating communities about lupus.

Through peer-to-peer education and outreach efforts in local communities, ambassadors are able to reach a diverse audience and share information about the signs and symptoms of lupus to reduce time to diagnosis, educate on the importance of participation in clinical trials in order to advance lupus research, and ensure people in their communities have the information, tools and resources to help them manage their disease.
