A HISTORY LESSON

Town of Ault

In the mid to late 1800's trappers, miners, settlers, and soldiers utilized the Trappers Trail. Adjacent to the trail was the grasslands that were used for farming and ranching. By 1870 there were enough people to attract the Water Supply and Storage Company who provided the water supply via ditch systems for potato and sugar beet farmers.

In 1893 Alexander Ault a grain buyer and distributor created a business along the Union Pacific Railroad using it to ship wheat and cattle. The community evolved into a crossroads for rural farms and ranches becoming an economic center for agricultural products.
