Joanna's Jottings

It's Saturday the 25th October, the last day of summer and the clocks are going back tonight as we fall back into Autumn.

As I left Hollybush this evening I was desperate to catch and take a photograph of the last sunset of the summer months; Racing towards home, I stopped and took this photo –

I just missed the glorious colours of the setting sun, and it had just disappeared behind the hills. It was then that I felt a tinge of sadness but yet happiness as I looked back over the summertime, both reflecting on our Church journey and my personal journey. Lots of exciting and inspiring moments. The music festival (Hollybush Church Festival), Family Camp, Ladies Day, incredible words and encouragement, new faces and old faces. Indeed, miracles, God is good.

But, yet grief once again struck its ugly head and coming to terms with those that we have lost and gone to Heaven, and for those that are lost in a world of despair, confusion, bitterness, self-hatred, and defeat. But, then the word 'Hope' comes to mind. For as much as I love the springtime and everything bursting into life, the leaves on the trees begin to unfold, looking green again.

This Autumn, I have observed that those leaves have been blown off the trees, a new season is here. But now I can see through the bare branches and look beyond the tree and there is a magnificent view of rolling hills and open fields. I can see beyond yesterday and what today may bring, with new hope for tomorrow. The view stretches as far as I can see. Praise the Lord.

It's a "new season" in the natural, but spiritually God is changing the landscape again.

Keep On, Pressing On.

Yours In His Service,

Pastor Joanna
