DALLAS TX and DETROIT, MI – Limeville Entertainment, LLC is proud to announce the release of its new short documentary, "A Rebel Missionary: Dollie Milfort in Haiti," a powerful film that chronicles the extraordinary dedication of a woman who has become a beacon of hope in the mountains of Haiti.

For an astounding 37 years, Dollie Milfort, a retired U.S. Army officer and Registered Nurse, has tirelessly served as a medical missionary in Haiti, steadfastly representing the Church of God in Christ. Over these decades, the lives she has saved and the hearts she has touched can be counted in the hundreds, a testament to her unwavering commitment to the Haitian people.

"This film is a tribute to the indomitable spirit of Dollie Milfort and the profound impact one person can have on a community," says filmmaker Lindell Singleton "Through her story, we explore the challenges and triumphs of providing healthcare in a place where the needs are so massive and those willing to help are so few."

"A Rebel Missionary" is shaped from a series of intimate Zoom interviews between the filmmaker and Milfort where she spoke openly and candidly about her life, her work, and the realities of life in Haiti. The documentary captures her reflections on her history and the reality on the island.

The film is created in partnership with the Center for African-American History and Church Research, based in Texas.
