

Embracing Failure Family Questions

Today we explored failure. Failure can be a difficult process to go through, especially if we have been working very hard towards a goal.

It's important to remember that failure is always a huge learning experience. It is an important process of growing and learning. We all have the ability to get back up and try again, even if we don't succeed the first time.

I heard today's topic was about embracing failure...

What does failure mean to you?

Do you think failure can be difficult? Why?
Why not?

Do you think failure can be good for us? Why?
Why not?

Tip: The feeling of failure can be a very difficult experience for children to go through. Learning to embrace failure is an important life skill for everyone. To help you child learn to be more comfortable with failure, share a time with them when you have experienced failure. Tell them what happened and how it made you feel. Talk about how you handled the situation and what you have learnt from it. It's important to share the positives that can come from failure and how we always come through it stronger than before.
