

3 Communication Secrets That Can Change Everything In Your Home

Remember Stewie from Family Guy? “Mum, mum, mum, mum”....endless!

1

Let it be known that this will be the cause of sudden onset hearing loss. You literally will no longer be able to hear the voice of any child that employs this as a strategy for getting your attention. This works at very young ages.

As an add on, same hearing-loss results also occur when any version of “MOOOOOMMMM” comes echoing from another part of the home, or from anywhere other than right in the same room. You are welcome.

2

When out shopping, any sentence beginning with “Can I have?” or “I want” will also trigger similar onset of hearing loss. If they ask, or what I call “negotiating” becomes relentless, annoying and manipulative, be prepared to leave the store. This will disarm the situation immediately.

3

Stop complaining about having to carpool your kids around to this and that, and drop this one off etc. Instead EMBRACE the opportunity to become a World Class Listener (aka detective). Don’t say a word after general greetings etc. unless asked specifically.

Kids en route to or from an event will literally vomit all sorts of information. They chat and engage with each other willingly, but if you ask it may feel like a nosy inquisition. Just remain curious.

Raising Independence

JANET KREBS