

ROSE YAGER

As a Dallas, Texas native, Rose trained in all styles of dance at Dancin' Feet Performing Company. For the next 15 years she performed in many events including, Dallas Cowboys Halftime shows and multiple industrial events, as well as indulging herself in the convention and competition world. She gained a BA in Interior Design from the University of Oklahoma in 2008, while training under SYTYCD's season 1 Destini Roger's performing company, Dare To Be Soul. After graduating, Rose resided in Los Angeles for over 5 years, was represented by one of LA's top agencies, Go2Talent, and continued to train with top choreographers such as Justin Giles, Nick Lanzisera, Erica Sobol, Doug Caldwell, and more. She performed as a company member in Erica Sobol's company, collidEdance. She traveled and assisted Tina D'Amato Sidoni, one of her beloved mentors, across the country. She gained countless tools that have influenced her as a teacher today. She has been an judge for Stage One Dance Competition since 2010. Rose's proudest moment and life long dream was joining Justin Giles' contemporary company, SoulEscape, in 2011. On now her 13th year as a company member, she continues to grow as a performer, story teller and most importantly an educator to our next generation. She stays true to who she is and encourages her students to find their own voice and artistry as well. Rose currently resides in Dallas, TX as the Assistant Director for SoulEscape as well as a choreographer and educator at Dance Industry Performing Arts Center.
