Presentation Title:

Basket Weaving: Connects Us to the Past, Present and Future

Starla Madrigal is Iviatem (Cahuilla) and Payómkawish (Luiseno) from the Pauma Band of Indians. From a young age she was immersed in her cultural heritage, learning the traditions, and history of her people through her parents, elders, and community. A leader and advocate for cultural traditions, Starla currently serves as the Chairwoman of the California Indian Basketweavers' Association. She works in tribal communities where she teaches basket weaving, traditional foods, plant medicines, pottery and jewelry. She is dedicated to preserving and revitalizing cultural traditions in her communities.
