Gov. Beshear Announces $5.6 Million in Grants to Expand Safe, Reliable Railway Infrastructure

Today, Gov. Andy Beshear announced over $5.6 million in state grants for six Kentucky railway infrastructure improvement projects spanning seven counties. Projects will improve commercial rail access, enhance safety, attract investment, and create jobs for Kentuckians. Learn More

To avoid disputes on public jobs, 'tell it like it is'

Major civil jobs remain a hot market. Even with economic headwinds at the federal level, demand remains high in states and cities, said Mary Scott Nabers, president and CEO of research strategy firm Strategic Partnerships. Learn More

What will OSHA look like when the government reopens?

Though the federal government is on pause, not everything grinds to a complete halt. For example, while most offices are empty, about 20% of OSHA staff remains on the job, Frederick said. This is mostly field staff for the most critical safety needs. Learn More

A Case for Practical & Strategic AI for Tomorrow's Construction Firm

It seems like we cannot begin a strategic conversation without uttering “artificial intelligence” (AI) at least 1,000 times. There is a certain level of fervor that contractors get about discussing digital AI in a tangible world of concrete, steel, and timber. Learn More
