Eleven Foot Brown Bear

True monarchs like this are not just a myth or something which is not obtainable. They do exist, but they are smart and don't come without great personal fortitude, self-discipline and a lot of luck. For five decades, Butch has told his bear hunters, "the only thing hard about shooting a 10 foot bear, is not shooting a 9 foot bear." Trophies like this 11 foot Wildman Brown Bear, taken in 2021 by Christopher Wilson of St. Louis, takes Butch's old adage to a much higher level indeed.

"We see tracks made by these huge bear every year, often in the summer, while guiding fishermen, on the same rivers that we hunt during the bear seasons." Says Butch, "They are smart, often nocturnal and don't make many fatal mistakes, so very few are actually taken." As of this writing, you will only find nine, eleven foot class bears in The 10 Foot Club, a listing of 154 Alaska brown bear, 10 foot or larger, taken on hunts outfitted by Gary "Butch" King, Alaska Master Guide.

Father & Son Brown Bear Hunt

A Two on One Hunt proved very successful for Robert and Steven Gegenheimer, who own and operate Cotton Mesa Whitetails near Corsicana Texas. Robert is no stranger at Wildman Lake Lodge, having previously taken moose, caribou and brown bear here. Now he wanting to share the Wildman experience with his son Stephen, they booked for 2020, only to have the season cancelled by Covid. As Butch put it, "2020 was hard on everyone but the bears." The hunt was re-scheduled for the very successful 2021 season. Robert's bear (right), squared 10 ft. - 8 in. and scored 27-08/16. Steven's bear squared 9 ft. - 8 in., scoring 26-02/16 SCI.

The High Score Boar

Paul Oppgaard, of Fargo North Dakota, took this ten foot boar scoring, 29-10/16 SCI, during the 2021 season at Wildman. It had been a slow, cold and windy hunt so far, but late on the fifth day, Paul's guide, Mark, spotted the bear while glassing after dinner. Being familiar with the area, Mark anticipated the bear's route and was able to get Paul in the intercept position at last light. Team work put another Wildman brown bear in the top of the Safari Club Record Book.
