Friendship is . . . Like treasure—shiny and rare. Friends are always ready to show they care. They lift you up when you fall down. Or quietly join you on the ground.

Friendship is fun, but it can also be challenging for young children. Licensed Clinical Social Worker Lauren H. Kerstein offers a different scenario that shows examples of friendship with each turn of the page. From cheering each other on and lifting us up to disagreements and even arguing, each colorful spread defines a difficult concept in a fun and rhythmic way.

When Jai, Emily, and Alex arrive at the middle school for their summer Codebreaker Academy club, everything around them is new: a new school; a new teacher, Mr. Wright; a new member of the club, Maya; and most of all, a whole bunch of new codes to crack. And you get to help them do it! Mr. Wright sends the Crew on a mysterious mission that takes them all throughout the building — with each cracked code, cypher, or puzzle taking them closer to solving a mystery. The best part is that each chapter ends in a code that needs to be cracked, and not only will you enjoy following, but you can also solve the codes before the Crew does! It's a reading adventure, where you get to be part of the fun!
