

WHY 3EW MATTERS

Three (Extra)Ordinary Women (3EW) is a transformative documentary that follows three women of color who have overcome abuse, poverty, and oppression on their way up Mt. Kilimanjaro. Through the power of personal narrative, the film ignites a deep sense of empathy and self-reflection, offering a profound message of resilience and growth. Their journey of healing and empowerment will inspire viewers to unite for social change and gender equity.

Social Impact campaign

"We are mobilizing action and inspiring social change by advocating for women's rights, addressing injustice, promoting healing, ending gender-based violence, building community, and empowering women to lead in all sectors."

TESTIMONIALS

Johanna Fernandez

Author, Historian, and Associate Professor at Baruch College (NY) has praised the film stating:

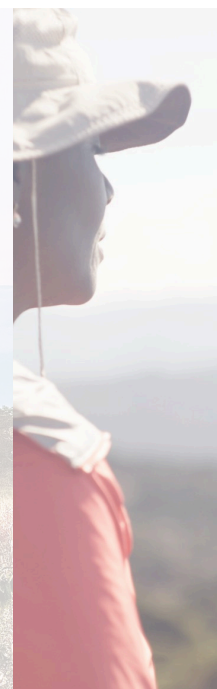

"Three (Extra)Ordinary Women is a powerful testament to the resilience and strength amid immense challenges. By intertwining the protagonists' personal stories with their physical journey up Mt. Kilimanjaro, the film creates an inspirational narrative that speaks to the universal human spirit. It reminds us that, like the arduous ascent of a mountain, overcoming life's obstacles requires perseverance, solidarity, and an unwavering commitment to hope, forgiveness, and resilience."

Sarah Selzer

Leader, Lawyer, and Mother (AZ) noted:

"The film's theme of emotional availability reminded me of Maslow's hierarchy and made me think about how you have moved all the way through it—from safety to self-actualization—in less than a lifetime. In other words, the film has created an intergenerational model of growth and change. Incredible!"
