Difference in Hemp and Marijuana Plants

Hemp

Marijuana

Hemp Plant versus Marijuana Plant

- The Hemp plant has both male and female parts of plant which pollinate and maintain .3% THC.
- In Marijuana the male parts of plant are removed. The female plant part creates a “glue” type substance trying to get fertilized- and never does.
- THC develops from this “glue” and its content can soar to 20-40%. THC causes the high.

How did CBD and Hemp get such a bad rap?

- Early Americans were required to have a certain percentage of crop fields farm Hemp. Why?
- America deemed hemp paramount to support new navy with superb hemp canvas for sails and ropes.
- Hemp has over 50000 uses from clothing to synthetics. Henry Ford made a car that was harder than steel.
- There were a few men who did not want hemp to continue as competition. They began a false media campaign linking hemp CBD to marijuana. They had money and influence...over 20 years of false advertising they changed the opinions of the public.
- In 1972 FDA put Marijuana on the most addictive chemical list with LSD etc.
- Hemp soon was targeted and no longer encouraged to be farmed. Soon hemp was banned due to competition with timber, chemical plants, and pharmaceuticals.
- Wakingtimes.com Waking Times Hemp Conspiracy:

July 2018 FDA removes Marijuana, CBD, & Hemp from the most dangerously addictive substances.

They discovered a synthetic CBD that helped children with seizures...

Trump signed a bill removing it totally from all regulated substances...in December 2018

30 min later FDA issues a statement they need to regulate hemp & CBD since they discovered this use for CBD.

January of 2019 there's a surge of CBD oil over the USA.

Most CBD oil is coming from international soils where standards are NOT regulated! Herbicides and pesticides can be sprayed on plants. Even sprays topically to enhance appearance, maturity of plants and who know what. Soils can be highly contaminated!

More on this in the next class. Where you get your CBD Matters!

Hemp absorbs toxins and can make soil organic over several harvests. The source of you CBD is imperative!
