

Chris Heeter

"I'm the musher. I'm the leader of my team. I am standing on the sled and my team is pulling me. To me this is a snapshot of what Wild Leadership looks like. I'm not out front dragging my team and breaking trail. That is their job. They do the work. My job is to guide them and have trained them, so they know what to do and to trust me. They pull me."

Speaks About: Wild Leadership | Wild at Work

What people are saying about Chris...

"Chris is a fantastic storyteller. Her delivery is comfortable, relaxed and resonates across a diverse audience. Dogs of course are a great draw. Chris had a line waiting to get in! Her stories and analogies from her outdoor adventures evoke emotions that everyone in the audience can connect to in their personal and professional lives. Her humanistic approach brings empathy back into the equation to address workforce challenges." - Jessica Arky, TC-SHRM

Sustainable Speaking Initiative

Chris' commitment to sustainability runs deep, from her home life to sitting on boards of environmental organizations to training and volunteering to help reduce our collective carbon footprint.

As a professional speaker, it was time to be more hands-on in helping to create a more earth-centered, sustainably focused approach to the meetings and events industry. Thus, Sustainable Speaking was born with a skin-in-the-game approach to supporting organizations and individuals like you making more intentional, sustainably focused decisions around the events you host.

The good news? It's a win in all directions. Our industry has the power to influence significant change, where carbon-neutral events become the norm. Our reach is wide. At the same time, these shifts help you deliver an aligned and powerful experience for your attendees.
