

Summary

“Ni di aqui. Ni de alla.” Is Spanish for.... Not from here. Not from there.

This was Denise’s experience growing up as a first-gen Latina from the suburbs of New York City.

She never felt Puerto Rican enough and she never felt American enough. She struggled with figuring out where she belonged.

Those early experiences led her to become a storyteller or millions of people as she translated her life experiences and curiosity for cultural belonging into an award-winning documentary, Being Eñye.

While on tour with the film, something amazing happened..... although the film’s story is rooted in her own experience of being bi-cultural, it’s message of belonging connected deeply with people from every walk of life, and from all over the world..

Speaks about:

Belonging, Culture, Identity, Increasing Collaboration, DEI, Employee Retention, Reaching the Latino Market
