

A Fill-In Book for all interested writers!

THE WRITER'S JOURNAL

Fill In Journal User's Name:

By: The Word Artist

How To Use This Journal

It's nice to see yet another reader who is interested in books and writing them. Man, I wish there were more people in the world who wanted to be authors. And that person, is you, dear reader. Words are stronger than we humans think. Now, if you want to use this journal, I suggest that you make use out of this book you are holding in your hands. Back to the topic.

Now, if you have never written a book before, check out my latest book, Writing Fiction: A Guide. However, if you are feeling confident, you can start on this book.

Basically, this journal is for you fill in your ideas for your next great story. As for the cover page "Fill In User Name" part, you are supposed to write down your name.

Well then, reader/writer, if you are ready, then flip the page and start filling in the blanks with your thoughts and ideas. If not, then check out the instructions below.

Instructions:

1. If the box/shape/line is empty, check out the title of the page or instructions to see what you are supposed to fill in.
2. You may skip some pages if desired.
3. Let your imagination go wild on specific pages which require thinking.
4. I won't be able to answer every question, so do turn the page. It's your journal, after all, not my FAQs section.
5. Have fun!

The Word Artist

Story Ideas

Do you want a fantasy book? Or an edge-of-your-seat thriller? You decide!

Write your book's genre(s) here!

Hmm...what will your story be about? List multiple ideas.

1.

2.

3.

4.

5.

Or...if you only have one story idea, feel free to write it below

Copyright of www.the-word-artist.com

Quotes by characters

What do you think a character could say that influences others?(good and/or bad) Write down some quotes you think will. If you wish, you may turn the bubbles into a conversation.

Decide your title!

Write a title with no more than eight words below. You may use more than one title to decide your choice.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

Now that we finished the basics, let's start on the first sentence!
What will the first sentence be(speech, sound, description, etc.)?

How about we try writing the first sentence?
Write a few examples, then select one to be used in the story.

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____

4. _____

If you were a reader, what first sentence in a story would make you interested? You may want to adapt this method into your writing. Write it in the box below!

Challenge: Describing a character!

How would you describe a character in one sentence? Try to describe as much as you can manage.(e.g. He was a tall, balding man with a crooked nose and heavy eyelids, as if he had stayed up all night.)

Note: If you want, you may replace the sentences with speeches made by characters in your story.

Piecing Together The Plot

When you are writing fiction books, remember that you might have to make up this place, create that island, and write the whole story. Take a break from your story-telling and create a whole new world from the comfort of your home. Write your answers to each question in the boxes provided below.

1. Imagine a street that is unordinary. Now write the reactions of a couple who just moved into the street and really hate things that are different into the box.

2. What if your friend discovers a scientist's lab in his or her basement? Write what you think your friend would do next. Include speeches, verbs and sounds to interest the reader.

3. How about making your own question? Write it below, and use the answer in your story.

Here, you may use these lines to plan out your story.

Free Lined Page

Do whatever you want with this lined page. You may also plan using it or write the first chapter here.

A page of horizontal lines for writing or planning. The lines are evenly spaced and extend across the width of the page. A diagonal watermark is present across the page.

Copyright of www.the-word-artist.com

A Smooth End

Okay, so now you've written almost the whole story, but you don't know which ending you planned to use. A happily-ever-after ending? To-be-continued ending? There are many possible endings, so that is what this page is for. Plan out a few endings, then select one to be used to end your story.

1. Happily Ever After.

2. To Be Continued (In a series or follow-up)

3. Cliffhanger (an end that leaves your readers wanting to read more) If it is in a series, do leave a cliff-hanger as that will tell the readers that you are making a second book.

4. Make your own below!

After The Story

Yay, you've finished your book! Now what?

Now, we have to reread your book and check of grammar mistakes or spelling problems. After that, we need to show the story to someone. Below, there are 3 lines. Write the names of three people whom you will show your book to.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Use the template below to write the cover page of your book!

Title: _____

Written By: _____

A last note!

Well, you've finished your book! I feel so happy for you. :D

I hope you found this book useful for planning out your next story.

One more thing, if you can, show it to as many people as you can. Get advice (even if it's bad), and improve.

Below, I made a small gift to you, congratulating you on yet another book(or first book)'s completion. 😊

Well, that's the end of this book. Enjoy your gift!

More by me: EYN House Series, Writing Fiction :A Guide, The Superhero Students, 500 words or less challenge, and more!

Note: please cut the gift out.

P.S. Look behind for a little bit more fun!

Cut

I, _____ (full name), have completed a new book, and was assisted by The Word Artist.

Signature(writer)

The Word Artist
Writer And Creator Of The Writer's Journal

~The End~

Special Thanks to:

(fill in names here)

Draw your "the end" sign below!

Co.

rd-artist.com