Summary

Earl is a diverse practitioner with both civil engineering and building qualifications. Earl has over 15 years of sports turf, civil and building infrastructure experience including design, planning, feasibility studies, project management and contract administration. He has contributed to large-scale projects that encompass major earth and civil works including roads, underground services, lakes, parks, and community sports facilities. In addition to private sector works, Earl is proficient in the delivery of public infrastructure works for local and state government authorities as well as mines authorities.

Earl strives to deliver alternatives that are more cost-effective than the norm. He also champions the exploration and inclusion of innovation at both the design and project management level achieving better outcomes for all stakeholders. Earl constantly reviews projects from inception to completion to maximise efficiency and value for clients. Earl has a strong and diverse network of professional colleagues ranging from clients, contractors, and government stakeholders, which is highly beneficial for the successful delivery of his projects.
