

Manifesto

I am a writer, a creative and a believer in the power of story

I write to bring creative situations to the imaginary where people can explore and think

and judge

and hate

and love

and bend norms and be fine with doing so in this imaginary world.

_____ ○ _____
Story can change lives. Story can bring lives together. Story can make memories. Story will live on when our life force moves into the ethereal

_____ ○ _____

I want to be that creative force that invokes emotion and takes my readers on a journey. It is one of my goals to improve my craft and never stop listening to the voices in my head and their desire to live in the world of story despite what others say, despite conformities made,

and despite fear

_____ ○ _____

Writing is a journey and it can be scary and scary fun. It can be exciting and make one question if there is something wrong with them, which I embrace. I want to build a community of readership and a community of those who love writing and story. Get me lost in a book. I want others to feel the same thing in my work.

I am a writer.