The Surprise

Roberta Wiegand

One Friday in August, Sarah's Poppa left in the buggy at noon and told the family he wouldn't be home until tomorrow.

"Just keep your shirts on—all of you—because when I come back, I'll bring you a real surprise."

The Lewis family spent the afternoon guessing what the surprise would be. Sarah thought it might be a set of encyclopedias, but the older boys, Harry and Charlie, thought it might be another bicycle.

"Do you suppose it could be a new washing machine?" Momma murmured.

"It's a baby sister!" Maryrose chanted. Georgie said that another dog would be better, a young boy dog!

When Poppa came home the next morning, he grinned and unfolded a piece of pink paper in his hand and waited. He looked like a magician who was showing them he had nothing up his sleeve. Then he laid the paper in the center of the kitchen table. BILL OF SALE it said across the top.

Now the magician waved his wand.

"This goes with what you'll see in front of the house," he announced.

The family rushed outside to look; however, what they saw never came from a magician's hat!

It was long and shiny with a copper-colored body and a coal-black top. It had brass lamps at the front and black leather seats and black wheels and fenders. This was not the first automobile they'd ever seen, but no one in their town had ever owned one.

"It's a Jackson," Poppa said proudly. "It has the same name as the first man to drive all the way across the United States."

The Lewis children raced to the street and ran around and around the car. They shouted at each other. "Look at this! Hey, see this!" They scrambled into and over the seats. Poppa had to take hold of Charlie's shoes and pull him out from underneath the automobile.

Then Poppa collapsed the top of the auto and folded it across the back of the rear seat. "We'll leave it like that while we take our first ride," he said. Now Sarah noticed that the auto was indeed all set to go. Its radiator was already pointed right down the Main Street hill.

Momma asked, "But, Herb—what about the buggy? It's brand-new."

"Why, I traded it, of course," Poppa said matter-of-factly. "No one needs a car and a buggy."

Now answer the questions about this part of the selection.

1. Everyone is excited when Poppa brings home a new automobile because
 - A. Poppa is going to take the family on a vacation.
 - B. Poppa is going to teach everyone how to drive.
 - C. it's the first automobile the family has ever owned.
 - D. it's the best automobile the family has ever had.

2. How did Poppa pay for the new car?
 - A. He traded the buggy for the car.
 - B. He sold the washing machine and used the money to pay for the car.
 - C. He sold a set of encyclopedias.
 - D. He traded his old car for a new one.

3. The setting of this story is
 - A. one summer day in the future.
 - B. an August day in the present.
 - C. one day last week.
 - D. one summer day many years ago.

Sarah didn't say a word. She quickly ran to the backyard, tugged open the door to the carriage house, and discovered it was completely empty inside.

She walked slowly back to tell the others. "He sold Old Belle, too," Sarah said.

Everyone looked accusingly at Poppa. Georgie started to whimper as the others began muttering.

"Naturally I sold her. Why would we keep a horse without a buggy? We have over twenty horsepower parked here. These are new times; we have to change with them. Now everyone get washed, and we'll go for our first ride."

Sarah stomped up to her room, but she didn't get cleaned up. She thought about all the years they'd had Old Belle. Her nose burned inside, and she could tell she was getting ready to cry. She decided to look at the car because she needed something to think about fast.

Outside, Harry was sitting bolt upright behind the wheel of the automobile with his new tweed cap on. Beside him sat old Bowser, staring straight down Main Street as if he expected to go along on the ride.

Sarah skipped down the walk. She wanted to tell Harry how funny they both looked. She knew he hadn't seen her because he kept on turning the wheel and pretending to drive. He pretended that he was moving some of the levers and knobs. He did it so well Sarah almost believed he knew what he was doing. It even looked as if the wheels on the car were going around.

The wheels were going around.

Sarah hollered at Harry to stop.

Harry and Bowser turned to look at her, their brown eyes wide with surprise. Then Sarah knew that Harry hadn't meant to go anywhere at all! The car started moving faster, and now Harry was too busy to look at her any more.

Sarah yelled for Poppa, who saw what was happening and dashed to the street, shouting at Harry as he ran. The car swerved gently across the road and then back again. Poppa chased the car as fast as he could. His long legs were moving so fast that he looked like a skinny spider.

When the car reached the corner by the Opera House, Everett Wagner started across with a cartload of watermelons. Harry swung the car behind it. Everett and his horse stopped as if they were frozen in the middle of the street, but one of Everett's watermelons fell off the cart and tumbled after them down the hill.

Now Harry seemed to be getting used to the steering wheel. He guided the beautiful, copper-colored Jackson on down the Main Street hill just as he did his sled in the wintertime. Poppa galloped along behind.

Now answer the questions about this part of the selection.

- A. trading in an old car when you buy a new one
 - B. giving away a dog when you move to an apartment
 - C. getting a new coat of paint in your bedroom

- A. he had driven a car many times.
 - B. Poppa told Harry how to drive as he chased the car.
 - C. he had taken driving lessons.
 - D. he steered the car just as he did his sled in the winter.

Finally the car neared the bottom of the hill. People were lined up on both sides of the road waiting for it to come, but ready to run if they needed to. It crossed Church Lane and aimed itself right at the courthouse door.

“It’s going inside!” Sarah thought frantically.

Luckily, the proud Jackson rolled majestically up onto the lawn. It came to a perfect stop with its radiator just touching the bottom step of the stone courthouse building.

Poppa was there almost at once.

By the time the rest of the Lewises panted down the hill, there was a great crowd around the car. Even Momma arrived at last.

Poppa reached in and pulled Harry out of the car. Sarah couldn’t tell if he was clapping Harry on the back for driving so well or hitting him because he was mad. Poppa didn’t seem to know either; Harry looked even more unsure. Bowser sat on the front seat and barked.

Eventually everyone decided to laugh. Harry managed a sickly grin, and at last the whole family piled into the Jackson. Bowser jumped in the car, too! This time Poppa cranked it, and the engine finally started. They chugged up the hill.

Sarah was excited with the ride, of course. But she remembered all the times Old Belle had pulled them up the same hill. She quietly cried herself to sleep that night. She could still feel Old Belle’s velvety lips slurping sugar from her hand. She could see the long, bony ridges on her nose and the soft, dark gray of her nostrils.

Early on Sunday the family took a long, bumpy ride in the country. This time Harry rode in the back seat.

The next morning Sarah was tired when she took Bowser’s breakfast to him. That was when she heard the noise. It seemed to come from the carriage house. When she peeked in the door, she saw the shiny Jackson where the buggy used to be. Then Sarah’s eyes grew used to the dark, and she could see the lumpy slope of Old Belle’s back.

Sarah rushed inside and threw her arms around the old horse’s neck. Belle smelled of oats and leather and the warm sweetness of something alive.

Sarah ran back into the kitchen where Poppa was already eating his breakfast. She threw her arms around his neck. “Oh, Poppa,” she squealed. “You got Old Belle back for us! Oh, I love you! I love you!”

Poppa sputtered and unclasped her arms from around his neck; his face was red. “Don’t make such a fuss, Sarah. You’re really a goose.” He gave her a friendly swat on her rear.

“When I took the car over those roads yesterday, I found out they’re terrible. I can see we’ll still need the sleigh this winter. You don’t think I’m going to pull it myself, do you?”

Now answer the questions about this part of the selection.

At one time, language only consisted of simple grunts and gestures. It took thousands of years for writing to evolve. Ancient man carved symbols and pictures in rocks. Some of those early drawings are still visible in caves and on canyon walls.

Some cultures used these pictures to record their daily activities. Others created an alphabet. Pen and paper made sharing one’s thoughts possible. A messenger could take news from one place to another. Yet, news only traveled as far as man could walk, ride, or sail. It often took months for a package to arrive.

In the 1840s, the Morse code was invented. The phone and radio came next. News could be sent long distances by wire or air. These devices changed the way people shared ideas. TV was viewed as a miracle of modern science sixty years ago. This brought moving pictures into people’s homes. Today, people can exchange ideas over the Internet. People can talk around the world almost instantly.

New inventions are made every day. With each idea, the world seems smaller. Imagine what communication will be like in the future!
