AND IN THE EARLY HOURS IT WILL FLICKER ASTERN...

...Of knowledge, only that which has been acquired for the purpose of forming understanding has value.

"Life itself arranges everything," conventional wisdom tells us. And so it began to arrange everything. And we suddenly began to understand how true cosmophysical natural processes had kept human consciousness in a state of ignorance and fornication for centuries. However, at this moment we are not at all grateful for such a "miracle", not accidentally performed at this very time, but we perceive it as a miraculous (mainly thanks to the Internet) open access to the information hidden from us, as an "epiphany" revealing our failure to understand what is happening due to our UNPREPAREDNESS for such. But this is just for right now. Awareness of the full depth of the processes will only come to those who already hold the spade of knowledge in their hands and have learned to operate it at least to some extent.

The very understanding of the processes of the formation of today's everyday reality is already more extended and broader than all of the media broadcasts about it put together. And it is presented as some processes associated with cosmophysics, and not with the previous philosophical "conjectures and juggling" within the framework of the same philosophical categories – nothing about anything true. It is this way of understanding that will allow us to comprehend and accept much in the future (or not accept, discarding it as unnecessary and maybe even harmful) and to express our assumption not only about the constructive essence of what is happening today, but also about the essence of our past in its multidirectionality.

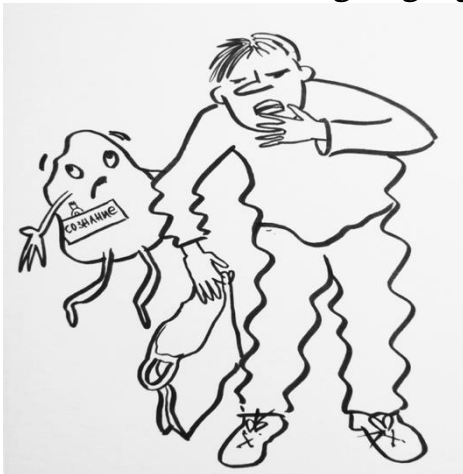

It will be also about the Brain genotypes, the mentality and the Consciousness and Mind associated with it that were used for controlling us and for creating realities which occurred previously, and occurring at this time, to guarantee in the future at another level of cognition to isolate, with the assistance of our Consciousness from the framework of the previous fictional illusions, the slavish insanity of the imposed contradictory orthodox dogmas, which were based on the previously imputed onto us animal parasitism and VIOLENCE IN EVERYTHING, including in all areas of our worldly past existence. Driven into a corner by the resulting processes, the current pseudo-leaders have transitioned themselves into a state of screeching hysteria in the area of the artificially created fifth space of war, that is, "Cyberspace" and "Artificial Intelligence," intimidating and overshadowing the Consciousness and Mind of people with dirty lies in all things. Past large-scale wars with the traditional means of destroying anything and everything have disappeared into this very past, preserving the elements of intimidation through openly demonstrated triune fascism.

Against this background, everyone mentally understands that it is absurd to live the way we do, and yet we continue to live in exactly the way we consider to be absurd. Simply because EVERYONE WANTS to live LIKE that. The vast majority of people live according to a program created by the old Control System, which generated and, as a residual phenomenon today, continues to GENERATE DESIRES in THEM. The auto-mobility of this affects absolutely everything. They do not know why they have been running in one direction or another all their lives, and what in the end, as the very last result, they would like to get. People don't belong to themselves. People belong to desires. Desires are generated by the programs existing in a person – instincts and patterns. Moreover, all this is conveyed to the so-called "young generation" through the mechanism of the family, which we call a "unit of society". Shortening this chain, we get: people belong to the one who creates programs – creates the programs through information that directly affects Consciousness. Along the line of instincts, man belongs to nature. Through the line of patterns – to the system. The system weaves its patterns into instincts through Consciousness. Moralists can say what they want, but if a person is immersed in an environment that cultivates the meaning of life through conspicuous consumption, he CANNOT have a bigger dream than to "make easy money". It doesn't matter how: steal, earn, save, win. Those who CAN'T MAKE IT, become moralists and moralizers¹. But if good money suddenly falls on them, moralizing immediately gives way to consumption. And even understanding HAS NOT made anyone give up their desires. No matter how you spin it, DESIRES ARE STRONGER than KNOWLEDGE. I may be wrong, but all people can be divided into three categories.

The first category: the one who KNOWS NOthing and does not want to know. His goals do not go beyond the shopping list for the coming weekend. This category of people "just lives". Then he "just dies." That, in fact, is their whole life strategy.

The second category of people: someone who knows what he DOES NOT WANT, but has no idea what he wants.

He is like a shopper in a store, not knowing what he needs. His gaze glides over the shop windows, thoughts flicker in his head: "This is not necessary, I don't want this, I don't want that." As far as his movements are chaotic in the store, so they are also in his life. Common words help them to be a nobody. He is much of the reasoning "I am my own Man", but that's about it. Sadly.

The third category of people: alas, is the smallest, those WHO KNOW WHAT THEY WANT. They differ sharply from the others in their purposeful behavior. But when the world is immersed in a vacuum of ideas, where do such people come from? Only through one's own consciousness and the realization that life is senseless, but that we have all settled into it and do not feel the slightest discomfort.

"And I see that people do not live, but they try on everything, try on and waste their whole life on it. And when they rob themselves of their time, they will start blaming fate. What is fate here? Fate? Everyone is his own destiny! I see all kinds of people, but there are no strong ones! Where are they? (M. Gorky -"The Old Woman Izergil").

Thousands of books have been written about consciousness in all of the languages of the world because this very phenomenon was chosen by the system that organizes the world, or to be more precise, it was embedded as an element in the development of specific genotypes of the human Brain through the old Control System to control the behavior of many generations of people on the planet. It is the "king" of psychology and the "tsar" of politics. Many researchers, without realizing it, for reasons quite clear to the reader, write that "the mystery surrounding consciousness has stumped the greatest minds in the history of mankind". It is paradox and mystery that most accurately define the psychology of consciousness. The scientific development of the problem of consciousness continued for about four centuries, but even by the beginning of the twenty-first century the concept of consciousness remains immensely broad and undefined. IT COULD NOT HAVE BEEN any other way in the framework of the processes taking place at that time.

For many years, attempts to unravel the mystery of consciousness have not progressed beyond the definition of Academician B.G. Ananyev²: "mental activity as consciousness is a dynamic ratio of sensory and logical knowledge, their system working as a single whole and determining each separate concept of knowledge... This working system is the human waking state or, in other words, the specifically human characteristic of wakefulness is consciousness".

The problems of today's world organizing system require some understanding of how the "political consciousness of a person" has been used for hundreds of years as the most effective instrument of political governance. The theory of functional psychology is best suited for this case. According to this theory, "consciousness is a stream, a river in which thoughts, sensations, memories and sudden associations constantly interrupt one another and whimsically, "illogically" intertwine." More precisely, the "stream of consciousness" is understood as a sequence of continuously alternating holistic mental states, a stream of experiences from which consciousness selects what corresponds to one's needs and shapes one's inner world. Four properties of the stream of consciousness are distinguished:

1. each "state of consciousness" strives to be part of personal consciousness;
2. within the boundaries of personal consciousness its states are changeable;
3. every personal consciousness represents a continuous sequence of sensations;
4. it perceives some objects willingly, rejects others, and generally makes a choice between them all the time.

Nicolai Levashov in his explanations aptly said that "Consciousness is a small island in the middle of the great ocean of possibilities of the human psyche, about the limits of which we know nothing".

There is an explanation within our understanding of how these four properties of the stream of consciousness connect it with mentality. The stream of consciousness is, of course, NOT AN ANALOGY of a homogeneous water current chaotically carrying random rubbish, the stream of consciousness consists of rigidly organized "channels," and they do not carry chaos, they carry orderliness. It is extremely difficult to penetrate into consciousness, so today a huge army of specialists is successfully inventing new ways of penetrating into it and then manipulating it to control human behavior.

The diagram from Professor A.I. Yuriev's works shows a cross-section of the stream of consciousness from the channels of the human mental processes, properties and states: they collide, mix in the stream, and all together they form human consciousness.

A cross-section of the stream of human consciousness, organizing information coming from outer space.

The cross-section of the stream of consciousness organizes mentality.

The first channel: emotions and feelings (affect) flow into consciousness through involuntary attention. The easiest and most effective way.

The second channel: sensations and perception pass into consciousness through involuntary memory. A simple and accessible way.

The third channel: motive and action (the will power) pass into consciousness through explicit attention. This is not an easy way.

The fourth channel: speech and visualization (thinking), pass into consciousness through explicit memory. It is a very complicated, time-consuming way.

Consciousness became political from the moment when the IDEA APPEARED to PENETRATE it through these four channels listed above, forming an attitude towards power and the world order. This idea appeared only within the framework of the development of the Brain genotypes in order to solve the problem of controlling people as a realization of the mechanism of their subordination. Power first of all is expressed in the power over consciousness, and only then over the territory and the economy. If a ruler has no power over consciousness, he is not a ruler, but a steward on the farm, to be replaced at any moment by one who has power over consciousness.

Primordial consciousness is objective, organized, clear, concrete, practical, sufficient for life, and necessary for adequate actions. But politics, which have always been a vector (an integral part) of processes implemented by the Control System, penetrating into any of the four channels of consciousness, could always and still can today falsify, disorient, destabilize, disinform, disorganize, discredit, disintegrate their content in the way it is necessary at "this moment for these politics". This is how consciousness becomes a field of BATTLE between TRUTH AND LIES – political consciousness: in the battle for consciousness, opposing politicians collide at its entrance. Not all of them bring evil. This is the simplest explanation. Nevertheless, these days, the stream of consciousness is as littered as never before in the history of mankind.

Here from this place begins the most difficult part of the problem of the relationship between consciousness and mentality: how are the "channels of the flow of consciousness" organized, and who does it? The convenience of using consciousness for politics was that it is "visible" to an outside observer, easily responds to its influences, quickly modifies itself, and directly gives reactions to the information offered. But the stream of consciousness is continuous (nothing can be fixed in it), it is changeable (one content is easy to exchange for another). And it is quite inconvenient that the stream of consciousness is individual (it cannot accept everything for an objective reason), and selective (it does not accept everything for a subjective reason).

Therefore, today's so-called "politicians" have many competitors for "filling the channels" with their content, and today society's attitude to the policies pursued by these "politicians" is critical. Actually, in the ongoing processes created by the new Control System, there is real objectivity.

Due to the imputed neglect of the four properties of consciousness as a stream, non-professional and professional politicians have lost the ways of verbally controlling consciousness. Because of this, politics has weakened, there are no politics, they are replaced today by imitation politics.

The level of verbal influence on politics through the development of the genotypes of the Brain has been demonstrated. W. Churchill wrote "A History of the English-speaking Peoples"; "The World Crisis"; a 6-volume analysis of the First World War, a 5-volume analysis of the Second World War, and delivered the Fulton speech. Stalin wrote 16 volumes of political analysis and political projects. The complete works of V. Lenin consist of 56 volumes. F. D. Roosevelt wrote the Second Bill of Rights, which, however, was not passed, etc.

Nowadays, due to the clogging of consciousness with advertising and verbal litter of all stripes, politicians are forced to manipulate people's behavior not by words, like their great predecessors, but by handing out money and physical violence. Neither their mentality nor their consciousness within that mentality can do more. Under the circumstances, it is obvious that consciousness must be replaced in order to PRESERVE WORLD ORDER. And in order to look for a replacement, you must simply begin to understand what is to be replaced and why it needs to be done.

It is necessary to treat the awareness and the understanding of what is stated above not from the position of the past orthodox materialistic worldview, which still dominates in the minds of the majority, but from the position of the already accomplished transition to the stage of cognition of the truth of materialistic idealism. The methodology and research method applied for the first time, about which it has been repeatedly mentioned and will continue to be, based on the energy-information dialectics of the GRADUAL BRAIN GENOTYPE DEVELOPMENT and control improvement with the application of Complexes providing and supporting Systems and Objects under the program control from the outside, allowed showing in a fundamentally different way the objective need to revise the semantic and target hierarchy of all that has occurred, including the historical processes of the development of human civilization. A fundamentally new research approach revealed the true, but most terrible for the current state of consciousness, material use of people against their will and beyond their awareness of the very fact of their being used in the past in such a program. In such a process of insurmountable violence over people, the programs and plans of external control were oriented to their specific targets, connected with the achievement of a certain controlled level of the Brain genotype development for a LIMITED CONTINGENT of INDIVIDUALS and the formation of consciousness both in them and in all other people controlled by them. Corresponding to this, a multistage plan of people's "development", including the energy biogenesis of their bodies, was embodied with an orientation to development and giving them such complex features and states that should be harmonious and acceptable for the specific Brain genotype (a specific mentality) and to further fit their specific plans under the external control of the old System. Only relying on this basic foundation is it possible to go forward and start to understand what, and more importantly why, that which is happening around us today, how to perceive what is happening, and how to react to all of this.

Our consciousness today is gradually beginning to "awaken" against the background of the development of the mind, which is still blocked by "violent flows" of information, most of which is false and contradictory, aimed at maintaining a position of governing the majority of people through a limited minority, which is in a virtually INADEQUATE state of mind and vision of the ongoing processes. What is the objectivity of such conclusions? In understanding and comprehending that for the last 18,000 years there has been only one Civilization – a "Civilization of Parasitism and Violence", and it has been divided only into stages of changing interventionist conditions of governance and corresponding with them the imputed states of the general stages of the UNNATURAL existence of the planet Earth from the moment of its capture and until recently, as the "development" program, not connected by its essence with the true purpose of Earth as a whole. Parasitism, as a peculiarity of the system and as a property at the same time, is the basic TARGET REFERENCE POINT of the very meaning of the whole existence of the interventionist Ebres System³. In the foundation of its formed Mind the parasitism is placed as the basis not only of existence, but the main condition of their development and survival in any macro-environment captured by them. They could exist only through the destruction and use of what they captured and re-equipped for their living conditions. Creation in itself is unattainable for the Ebres System. Which, in fact, has already been clearly demonstrated in almost all aspects of our existence today.

Since people's life in all its essence and substance as such is a subordinate result of the impact of controlling information, which, in turn, is a target contact controlling process with the substance of the state of Mind, it means that the STAGES of the DEVELOPMENT of INFORMATION are the stages of people's life development with all the corresponding step-by-step embodiments of their being. The true reasons for expressing and describing the specific stages of the development of civilization are only the stages of the development of the Brain genotypes, as an externally controlled process implemented through Complexes and Objects. There has been a strictly externally verified program for the development of quite specific genotypes of the Brain in 12 stages (this has been presented as 12 generic tribes) for almost 18,000 years. It has been CAREFULLY HIDDEN that a person also has a Mind and Consciousness, and is represented by a specific Construct (!), which the Ebres System has tried to "deform" in various ways. Each separate typology of Mind Structure deformation is a so-called Genotype of the Brain.

The acquisition of the contact informational state (Consciousness) is provided through the CONSTRUCTION of the MIND. Brain genotype imputation is a process of imparting executive actions with a low, i.e. blocked level of people's consciousness, like a cyber-appendage to impute and implement their plans. The timing of each stage of the development of Civilization was based on the parameters of the executed staged processes from the programs of "The Development of the Brain Genotypes and the Energy Biogenesis of the flesh cell". The entirety of history, science and human cognition, as a program of the development of the Brain genotypes, is the MAIN LAW of what happened and what is still happening today (as a residual manifestation of the Ebres Control System), and not anything else. The consequences of all this, we are observing with our own eyes today. The fact that the era of political consciousness is ending is demonstrated by these simple facts of life:

- 1) Radio and TV programs with literary Russian language (poetry, prose, songs in Russian) have disappeared;
- 2) The teaching of the Russian language at school has been curtailed, and students at universities make 20 grammatical mistakes on one page;
- 3) In the titles of TV channels and in social networks the Russian language is blatantly mutilated, this has become a sign of supposed fashion;
- 4) Books have almost completely been replaced by smartphones on public transportation;

- 5) When we change our place of residence, the first things which are thrown in the trash are the books which up until recently were “worth their weight in gold”;
- 6) In theaters, speech has been replaced by the non-verbal expression of thoughts and feelings through paroxysmal movements and grimaces;
- 7) In all TV programs that show new apartments, there are neither bookcases, nor even shelves: when books end, and reading ends – then consciousness ends as well, including the so-called "political" consciousness.

And in this regard it is necessary to understand what affects the genotype of the Brain (its development) today, or more precisely, how mentality affects consciousness. Because mentality is the main and prevailing feature (if you like, the main component) of the Brain genotype. Mentality determines the gradation (4XX) of the genotype.

The hope for strengthening the role of mentality, including political mentality, is overdue. Mentality is an integral characteristic of people living in a particular culture, which allows us to describe the peculiarity of how these people see the world around them and how they react to it. Mentality, or genotype today, in the framework of the new Control System, is, in my opinion, the spiritual and stationary basis of the human being, which allows him to modify his behavior endlessly, while remaining the same. There are many definitions that do not cause criticism, but none of them will lead us directly to the notion of the genotype of the Brain as such, but will only allow us to reflect precisely on the mentality and, by virtue of my knowledge, I will assume:

The First assumption. Mentality is older than consciousness, which has grown out of the mentality and remains dependent on it, and moreover, the mentality "works" INSTEAD OF CONSCIOUSNESS when it finds itself in a critical situation. It has been observed that all people in desperate situations go to church, even if they are non-believers. The well-known psychological categories listed in the section on the flow of consciousness are derived from the categories of the mentality section that shape consciousness. The cross-section of mentality consists of very poorly understood and difficult to articulate philosophical and psychological phenomena: the meaning of life, life values, life goals and the will to live. But the carrier of consciousness is speech, so the meaning of life in it appears as affect (emotions and feelings); values of life – as perception (sensations and perception); the purpose of life – as thinking (ideas and speech); the will to live – as the psychology of will (motive and action).

These categories of consciousness are easily studied, realized, formulated, measured, formed, applied in the form of reactions to stimuli, but their origin is in the mentality. It is important for us to understand this today.

The Second assumption. Mentality plays the role of "superconsciousness" or "preconsciousness", because, being at the entrance to the stream of consciousness, it DOES NOT ALLOW anything to enter it from the "scary spaces of the Universe" that threaten consciousness with destruction. Mentality stops excessive manipulation of consciousness in order to protect it from delusional and unimaginably priceless thoughts, jumps and obsessions, products of incoherent and disconnected thinking, and Pseudophilosophy. This has always hindered and continues to hinder those who think they are rulers, politics itself, and use it against mentality. Since the mentality is related to the ethnos of its bearer (the specific genotype of the Brain), it was always the ethnos that was attacked, such as the "struggle against Great Russian chauvinism" in the 1920-1930s. But it is ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE to INFLUENCE the mentality because it is hidden both from an external observer and from the very bearer of the mentality, of whom almost NO ONE CAN answer the elementary question: what is the meaning of their life? Or what is the purpose of their life? There are answers to these questions in a non-verbal form in their mentality, but they are protected even from the bearer himself: he cannot "get them out of there", so no one else can do it either.

The Third assumption. Mentality is indeed between the world and consciousness, as a prism analyzing all content entering its channels from the perspective of "collective or personal unconscious in pure or sublimated form, from which our thoughts grow, and which is an organic part of living culture. The unconscious content (the meaning of life, the purpose of life, the values of life, and labor) is ABSORBED by the MENTALITY UNCONSCIOUSLY as a frog absorbs water by the skin of its entire body surface. The content of mentality is "absorbed" throughout life, without any evaluation, criticism, questioning or analysis. It is the invaluable experience of survival in the environment of one's life; and it is more powerful than any political content that can break into the stream of consciousness through the control of the mentality.

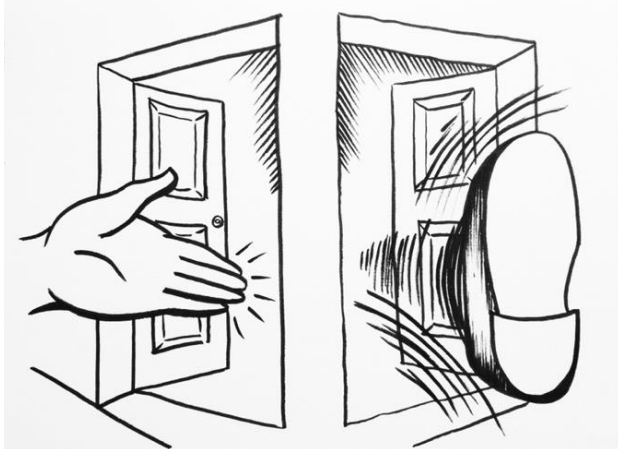

The Fourth assumption. Mentality itself is derived from dogma that has formed its own channels. A discussion is likely and appropriate here. I believe that quite a long time ago, historically, there was formed a NEGATIVE ATTITUDE towards the concepts of "dogma", "doctrine" and "dogmatics". And nowadays, ordinary thinking habitually perceives these words extremely negatively. Such an attitude toward dogma is the result of a philosophical and political struggle: the Great French Revolution fought against Christian dogmas and for their replacement by anti-Christian dogmas, which were later formalized as the dogmas of positivism – a new post-revolutionary religion that carried with it such new dogmas as: "..there is only experiential knowledge based on what is directly given to us"; "science is itself a philosophy"; "seek not the essence of phenomena, but their relation", etc.). So, dogmatism has never ceased and will not cease in people until people become Humans. A dogma is always a scientific-dialectical system or a principle of it. The significance of dogmatism is that "a dogma ...is the AFFIRMATION of ETERNAL TRUTHS in opposition to all material, temporal and historical phenomena. The main point of dogmas is that they form the content of the mentality channel and, accordingly, they form the content of the Brain's genotype, developing it or inhibiting it depending on the global tasks being solved within the framework of the Control System. Thus, the dogma "man's mission" in mentality is transformed into the meaning of life; the dogma "man's purpose" into the value of life; the dogma "man's calling" into the aim of life; the dogma "man's service" into the will to life. Without these dogmas, which form the mentality and then the stream of consciousness, there would be complete chaos in a person's behavior, with all the consequences that follow.

Fifth assumption. Thus, mentality is included in the hierarchical system of regulation of human behavior, but it finally becomes political when its connection with a person's faith is revealed. It is NO SECRET that dogmatics are a derivative of faith, which determines the content of its channels, and THIS is RELIGION. Most scientists believe that "faith is the most important component of mentality and is always initially present in human consciousness." Proponents of this point of view make a strong argument: "Only a few beings are the subjects of their own thoughts. Most repeat someone else's. To have one's own opinion on all matters is an impossible task. One has to believe...". Therefore, the integrity and strength of the mentality is given by ITS BASIC CONSTRUCTION – FAITH. Religious ideas have shaped the "national character" in a decisive way. This is the formative role of mentality in the development (or no development – only retention in a certain state) of specific genotypes of the Brain. It is well known that of all the powers that mankind has, the power of faith has always been the mightiest. We can quote similar thoughts of A. Einstein and E. Fromm, who believed that "the mind cannot be effective until a person has hope and faith." The deepest known channels of influence on human behavior initially determine the entire system of the formation of mentality, and after that, of human consciousness. The fundamental religious category – Love, gives rise to the category of the Human Mission in dogmatics; also, Faith gives rise to the Human Destiny in dogmatics; Hope is the source of the dogmatics of a Calling. They initially, from depths unknown to us, define the essence of a person and give each person from birth a Mission that ought to be fulfilled; a Destiny that protects him from dangers; and a Calling as the way to fulfill his Mission. These are given to a person at birth; they are as inescapable as the color of their eyes or their skin. But it is in the mentality that they are transformed into the meaning of life, the aim of life, the values of life, and the will to live. If for some reason there are breaks in this chain of transformations of these categories from belief to consciousness, the person is left "alone" with the outside world, LOSING the SUPPORT of MENTALITY, the Control System (both within the Old CS, and today, within the new CS). Then the external environment does what it wants with them, relegating them to the bottom of life.

Sixth assumption. There are fundamental differences between political consciousness and political mentality. In addition to the obvious dependence of open consciousness on a closed mentality, they are protected from external influences to varying degrees. The solidity of the content of the mentality is such that it easily resists any attempts to penetrate it with any external content. Whereas the strength of the stream-of-consciousness content is much weaker than the external content penetrating it. Another fundamental difference between mentality and consciousness is that the flow of information in the human Brain is unidirectional: it flows from mentality to consciousness, and never from consciousness to mentality. Consciousness does NOT CHANGE the content of mentality, and mentality is always at the ready, in order to fill the stream of consciousness when it experiences difficulties. When the stream of consciousness is filled with "information garbage", which produces "wrong" behavior", they try to blame it on the mentality that Russians allegedly have: "a smile in Russian communication is not an obligatory attribute of politeness"; "love of arguments"; "the habit of stealing, bribery and deception"; "the love of free stuff are characteristic features of the Russian mentality", etc. At the same time, the source of such behavior is precisely the "littered flow of consciousness".

In our current awareness, how can we approach such important questions that can somehow define and guide our understanding of what, how and why the events of today are happening? How do ordinary people who want to understand all of this, but because of the conditions created for them, don't even know which way and from which angle to look at everything I've laid out above? There is NOTHING that PREVENTS us from applying what is clear, familiar, and meaningful to us, whether at school, in college or other educational institutions, or, of course, in everyday experience. However, we ought to apply meaningfully and always in comparison with current information, which pours down on us in a steady flow. Those who see the essence of things, distinguish the primary from the secondary and are able to think beyond the alphabetical truths. Whoever understands that there are no right solutions today and that any nonsense can turn out to be true, can expect to enter the "door of knowledge" and, having entered, NOT to get KICKED OUT of there without having understood or realized anything.

I like the saying of the early Communists: "There are no fortresses that the Bolsheviks could not take. Such an attitude guarantees answers to all questions and overcomes all obstacles. So, let's enter the "door of cognition" and in order not to get kicked out of it, let's look at Consciousness from the position of "field physics".

This is a cosmophysical process related to the formation of associated schemes of the connection of the Brain neurons for their subsequent practical interaction during the implementation of certain of its functions with the controlling participation of the PROCESSES of GRAVITATIONAL CHARACTERISTICS. Today it is possible to make a bold scientific assumption that Consciousness itself has a gravitational basis in general, and the formation of its elements is arranged on the basis of field physics (which as yet does not exist, while there is a lot of chatter concerning these fields)! It remains to clarify how and by what means such control of gravitational nature is implemented, i.e. who or what is the gravitational "ruler and shaper" of some of the elements of our Consciousness...?

It is impossible to state everything I would like to state in a linear sequence, thoroughly arguing each thought. I say this with confidence, as I am trying to do it in the 369 series. So far – IT'S NOT QUITE WORKING OUT (to put it mildly). Each subject, which, in my opinion, is extremely important to understand today – is so huge that it requires a book of its own. And there are many of these books. To arrange them all into a single chain in such a way as to bring one subject completely to an end without interrupting another is probably unrealistic. If interrupted, the first subject is forgotten while the second develops. In this I become more and more convinced, communicating with those who, in their own words, “have read everything” (and not only what I have written). Such an approach forms a mountain of one tangled and intertwined rope that NO ONE TAKES FOR a unified structure. At best, it is a pile of interesting thoughts and facts that are not related to each other and do not add up to a unified picture. You can pull individual fragments out of it, but you cannot see the whole picture. And without seeing the whole, many people (the majority) do NOT HAVE any motivation to change their worldview and their main course of life. But even if I were somehow able to present all the material into one main line, the output would be an exorbitant volume of work that would frighten people by its very magnitude. How much time this process would take, I do not even know what to assume here... it seems to be an infinity. I thought about this for a long time before starting the series 369. One way to avoid such terrible downsides is to present the material in such a way that it can be grasped all at once, without diving into the details. As part of this goal, I have decided to outline in the largest strokes only what I CONSIDER to be the MAIN thing in the knowledge of today – the IDEA, which, in my opinion, is capable of changing practically everything, and most importantly – Mentality, Consciousness, the way of Cognition and through it – the possibility of achieving the set goal and the way to achieve it. This is probably the most important thing in the conceived 369 series.

Argumentation and secondary accompanying themes, as reference information for comprehension, I will finish later and insert in the text as reference links – both my own information, which I possess and which has already been published, and those authors, on whose information you can rely or simply start your own journey with, as for example, the works of Nicolai Levashov. To those whom the major strokes of the 369 series are sufficient, they can move from theory to practice. To practice with their personal responsibility for their life's deeds. Those who need argumentation - let them go and unfold the reference link for better understanding of what I have written. Of course, help can and should be sought according to the epoch. As much as cave paintings corresponded to primitive mankind, so much electronic media corresponds to the information age. Such a medium is optimal in many ways. For example, you can take the information with you, correct the text, add or delete it without limitations, and always be in step with the time and move away from the old, but DO NOT FORGET the printed books which are gathering dust on your shelves today and on your parents' and grandparents' shelves. They are also bearers of information, and sometimes more meaningful and profound than electronic books.

AND IT WILL FLICKER ASTERN IN THE EARLY MORNING ...

If there is a lot you do not understand, especially about what is going on around you, there is no need to be embarrassed about it. The situation has now narrowed down to such specifics as IT has NEVER BEEN before. The main thing now is to get things moving. To shift in everything and especially in your understanding.

One more piece of advice - read WITHOUT HASTE.

Be sure to reread it. And the next day, with a clear head, do it again. There is an analogy with learning a foreign language - it is impossible to read a self-study book from cover to cover once and start speaking the language. It is the same with unfamiliar thoughts - you cannot assimilate them just by reading. You have to soak it in. A thought enters the head and, if it is retained there, it takes root everywhere. The brain is not transformed by knowledge, but by understanding. The only important knowledge is that which aims to form understanding and leads to it. If you are interested in learning about this process in detail, read the following article, which, in my opinion, will continue this most important subject.
