

Strategy and management accounting – Graham Simons Pitcher

Table of contents

Chapter 1	Management accounting and the strategic management framework
1.1	Introduction
1.2	Learning outcomes
1.3	What is management accounting?
1.4	The development of strategic management accounting
1.5	The uptake of strategic management accounting
1.6	The need for a strategic management process
1.7	The strategic management framework
1.8	Who sets the strategy?
1.9	Levels of strategy
1.10	Inside-out and outside-in view of strategy
1.11	Supporting the strategic management process
1.12	The role of accounting data and information within strategy
1.13	Strategy as practice and management accounting
1.14	The 3Ps of strategy as practice
1.15	Summary
1.16	Review questions
1.17	Case study activity HW Inc. activity 1 – Approach to strategy
1.18	References
Chapter 2	Vision, mission, strategy, and management accounting
2.1	Introduction
2.2	Learning outcomes
2.3	Vision, mission, and objectives – A good place to start
2.4	Management accounting and vision, mission, and strategy
2.5	Strategic typologies and management accounting
2.6	Management control systems
2.7	The role of objectives
2.8	Stakeholders
2.9	An example of corporate strategy
2.10	Summary
2.11	Review questions
2.12	Case study activity HW Inc. activity 2 – Vision and mission
2.13	References
Chapter 3	Understanding the business environment
3.1	Introduction
3.2	Learning outcomes

3.3	The changing business environment
3.4	Macro and task environment
3.5	Why undertake environmental analysis?
3.6	The PESTEL framework
3.7	PESTEL – an example for the agricultural sector
3.8	Industry analysis
3.9	An example of five forces – pharmaceutical industry
3.10	Link between industries
3.11	Competitor analysis
3.12	Network organisations
3.13	Business ecosystems
	3.13.1 Risks and regulation of the ecosystem
	3.13.2 Governance of ecosystems and networks
	3.13.3 Ecosystems and strategy
	3.13.4 Ecosystem and management accounting
3.14	Sources of environmental data
3.15	Scenario planning
	3.15.1 Objectives of scenario planning
	3.15.2 Benefits and issues of undertaking scenario planning
	3.15.3 Issues to be aware of in scenario planning
	3.15.4 Developing scenarios
	3.15.5 Schools of scenario planning
	3.15.6 Using scenarios
3.16	Summary
3.17	Review questions
3.18	Case study activity
	HW Inc. activity 3 – Environmental analysis
3.19	References
Chapter 4 Internal analysis and resource capability audit
4.1	Introduction
4.2	Learning outcomes
4.3	The 9M's framework
4.4	Product life cycle
	4.4.1 Strategies for managing the product life cycle
	4.4.2 Management accounting and the PLC
	4.4.3 Difficulties of managing the PLC
4.5	Managing a portfolio of products and the BCG matrix
	4.5.1 Portfolio analysis – the Boston Consulting Group matrix
	4.5.2 Uses of portfolio analysis
	4.5.3 Further considerations of using BCG analysis

	4.5.4	Financial controls and accounting techniques
	4.5.5	The Case of Nokia
4.6		Understanding customers
4.7		Customer profitability analysis
	4.7.1	CPA – the what and why
	4.7.2	Calculation of CPA using activity levels
	4.7.3	Benefits of CPA
	4.7.4	CPA as part of CRM
	4.7.5	Dimensions of the CPA calculation
	4.7.6	When are different dimensions of CPA appropriate?
4.8		Customer portfolio management
4.9		Value creation system
	4.9.1	Using value creation system analysis
4.10		Supplier analysis
	4.10.1	The Three Elements Related to Supplier Analysis
4.11		Financial analysis
4.12		Summary
4.13		Review questions
4.14		Case study activities
		HW Inc. activity 4 – Portfolio analysis
		HW Inc. activity 5 – CPA
		HW Inc. activity 6 – Value creation system
		HW Inc. activity 7 – Financial analysis
4.15		References
Chapter 5 Strategic position
5.1		Introduction
5.2		Learning outcomes
5.3		The strategic position and SWOT analysis
	5.3.1	Developing strategies from SWOT
5.4		GAP analysis
5.5		Summary
5.6		Review questions
5.7		Case study activity
		HW Inc. activity 8 - SWOT analysis
5.8		References
Chapter 6 Competitive strategies
6.1		Introduction
6.2		Learning outcomes

6.3	The generic competitive strategies
6.3.1	Cost leadership
6.3.2	Differentiation
6.3.3	Focus (or niche) strategy
6.3.4	Example of competitive strategies
6.3.5	The danger of being stuck in the middle
6.3.6	The strategy continuum
6.4	Pricing strategy
6.5	The value creation system revisited
6.6	Activity-based costing (ABC)
6.6.1	Why use ABC?
6.6.2	The process of ABC—an Example
6.6.3	Benefits and drawbacks of ABC
6.6.4	Time-drive activity-based costing
6.6.5	Activity-based management (ABM)
6.6.6	A solution to ABC learning activity
6.7	Lean accounting
6.8	Cost of quality
6.8.1	Costs of quality report
6.9	Summary
6.10	Review questions
6.11	Case study activities
	HW Inc. activity 9 – Competitive strategies
	HW Inc. activity 10 – ABC
	HW Inc. activity 11 – TDABC
	HW Inc. activity 12 – Costs of quality
6.12	References

Chapter 7	Strategic options generation
------------------	-------------------------------------

7.1	Introduction
7.2	Learning outcomes
7.3	Ansoff's growth vector matrix
7.4	Strategies for growth
7.4.1	Withdrawal
7.4.2	Market penetration
7.4.3	Consolidation
7.4.4	Product development
7.4.5	Market development
7.5	Evaluating viable international markets
7.5.1	Whether to market abroad.

	7.5.2	Which markets to enter?
	7.5.3	Mode of entry
7.6		Diversification
7.7		A mx of strategies for growth
7.8		Target costing
	7.8.1	What is target costing?
	7.8.2	Where is target costing appropriate?
	7.8.3	The process of target costing
	7.8.4	Benefits of target costing
	7.8.5	Considerations of implementing target costing
7.9		Life cycle costing
	7.9.1	Why life cycle costing?
	7.9.2	What is life cycle costing?
	7.9.3	Life cycle costing and new product development
	7.9.4	Life cycle costing and building and construction projects
	7.9.5	Life cycle costing and comparison and affordability studies
	7.9.6	Methods of determining life cycle costs
	7.9.7	Benefits of life cycle costing
	7.9.8	Considerations in implementing life cycle costing
7.10		Methods of growth
	7.10.1	Organic growth/internal development
	7.10.2	Mergers and acquisitions
	7.10.3	Forms of joint development
	7.10.4	Direction and method of growth
7.11		Summary
7.12		Review questions
7.13		Case study activities
		HW Inc. activity 13 – International expansion
		HW Inc. activity 14 – Joint development
		HW Inc. activity 15 – Growth strategies
7.14		References
Chapter 8		Strategic evaluation and choice
8.1		Introduction
8.2		Learning outcomes
8.3		Elements of strategic evaluation
8.4		Stakeholder analysis in relation to strategic choices
	8.4.1	Classification of stakeholders
	8.4.2	Stakeholder mapping
	8.4.3	The case of Dyson’s decision move of production overseas

8.5	Financial evaluation
8.5.1	Methods of investment appraisal
8.6	Real options
8.6.1	The concept of options and real options in investment appraisal
8.6.2	Different types of options
8.6.3	Viewing options as real options examples
8.6.4	Black-Scholes Option Pricing model
8.6.5	Limitations of Black-Scholes options pricing model
8.7	Risk management
8.8	Summary
8.9	Review questions
8.10	Case study activities
	HW Inc. activity 16 - Stakeholder analysis and investment appraisal
	HW Inc. activity 17 – Investment appraisal
8.11	References
Chapter 9	Implementation issues
9.1	Introduction
9.2	Learning outcomes
9.3	Crystallizing the strategy plan into an operational budget
9.3.1	Starting point of the traditional budget process
9.3.2	The budget process
9.3.3	Types of budget process
9.3.4	Budgetary control with latest estimated forecast or trend
9.4	Beyond budgeting
9.4.1	Principles of beyond budgeting
9.4.2	Features of beyond budgeting
9.5	Change
9.5.1	Key features of effective change
9.6	Tailoring the accounting system to the strategy and using appropriate reporting
9.6.1	Reporting structures and focus of management reports
9.6.2	Responsibility accounting
9.6.3	Ensuring that the systems are developed to the changing needs of the business
9.7	A note on business partnering
9.8	Summary

9.9	Review questions
9.10	Case study activities HW Inc. activity 18 – Implementing strategic change
9.11	References
Chapter 10 Multi-dimensional performance management
10.1	Introduction
10.2	Learning outcomes
10.3	A multi-dimensional approach to performance management
	10.3.1 A balanced scorecard
	10.3.2. Critical success factors and interlocking scorecards
	10.3.3 Example of objectives and measures in a balanced scorecard
10.4	Performance management in service organizations
10.5	Simons' levers of control
10.6	Divisional performance
	10.6.1 Levels of performance monitoring of business units
	10.6.2 Return on investment (ROI) and residual income (RI)
10.7	Economic Value Added
	10.7.1 Benefits and drawbacks of EVA™
	10.7.2 Key factors to consider when implementing EVA™
10.8	The issue of transfer pricing in divisional performance
	10.8.1 Options for transfer pricing
	10.8.2 Transfer pricing across international borders
10.9	Benchmarking
	10.9.1 Uses and benefits of benchmarking
	10.9.2 Difficulties of Benchmarking
	10.9.3 Classification of benchmarking
	10.9.4 Stages of a benchmarking exercise
10.10	Behavioural aspects of performance management
	10.10.1 Roles of performance measurement in reward systems
10.11	Summary
10.12	Review questions

10.13	Case study activities HW Inc. activity 19 – Balanced scorecard HW Inc. activity 20 – Performance measurement HW Inc. activity 21 – EVA HW Inc. activity 22 – Transfer pricing HW Inc. activity 23 – Benchmarking HW Inc. activity 24 – Divisional performance
10.14	References
Chapter 11 Sustainability and the future role of management accounting
11.1	Introduction
11.2	Learning outcomes
11.3	What is sustainable development?
11.4	Why be sustainable?
11.5	Environmental accounting
11.6	Integrated management control systems
11.7	Sustainable balanced scorecard
11.8	Enabling the accountant’s role in strategic management process
11.9	Summary
11.10	Review questions
11.11	Case study activities HW Inc. activity 25 – sustainability HW Inc. activity 26 – sustainability and the accountant
11.12	References
Appendix A	Case study background
Appendix B	Management accounting fundamentals
B1	Introduction
B2	Learning outcomes
B3	Breakeven point - Cost Volume Profit analysis B3.1 Cost behavior B3.2 Calculation of the breakeven point. B3.3 Margin of safety B3.4 Limitations of breakeven analysis
B4	Product mix decisions B4.1 Contribution per limiting factor
B5	Budgets B5.1 Flexible budgets
B6	Cash budgets B6.1 A simple example
B7	Financial analysis

	B7.1	Example financial analysis
B8		Review questions
B9		References
B10		Solutions to review questions
Appendix C		Suggested solutions and ideas for case study activities
Appendix D		Present value tables