Get A Quote More About Shake Roofing Many homeowners throughout the country would love the enhanced protection that metal roofing provides. However, some homeowners hesitate to make this investment, as standard metal roofing simply doesn't suit their home's architectural design. At Erie Home, we've created a metal roofing system that replicates the look of classic roofing styles, such as dimensional shingle, Spanish tile, and shake. Is an Erie Metal Roofing System Worth the Investment? Erie Metal Roofs start as a steel panel that's stamped into a dramatic shingle, tile, or shake design, and then is coated with an aluminum-zinc alloy. Stone chips are bonded to the steel with our acrylic resin binder. These stone granules offer a protective coating, resisting fading and UV penetration, as well as providing an attractive appearance. Our final glaze process encapsulates the panel, protecting your roof from any damage far longer than other roofing materials on the market. Indeed, Erie metal roofing is designed to endure and is perfect for virtually any climate condition. Through pounding hail, heavy snow, intense sun, and strong winds, your metal roofing system will provide constant protection.

Erie Metal Roofs Installation Every Erie metal roofing system is professionally installed by dedicated crews of experienced and well-trained technicians who work exclusively with steel panels and accessories on a full-time basis. Many of these technicians are metal roofing artists when it comes to creating the exact look our customers want.
